BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

LLOYD GEORGE, whose weekly articles all intelligent people should read, says labor in England is not what it was, "Its glory has disappeared," and with it "its tolerance." He adds that, the temperature of socialist gatherings is considerably reduced."

Lloyd George says "Labor is beginning to realize that the world cannot be reconstructed by phrases" and that the building of the "city of God on earth" you must have plans and specifications.

That is true, as many sorrowing relatives can testify. But, on the other hand, to "build the city of God upon earth" you must first determine that it will build that city. An enthusiast must fight FOR THE IDEA long before the plans and specifications are made in detail and before the foundations are laid.

BLAKE, before he died in a miserable dark room, laughed at as "half crazy," wrote:

"Give me my bow of burning gold,
Give me my arrows of desire,
Give me my spear, oh, stars unfold,
Give me my chariot of fire.

"I will not rest from mortal fight
Nor let my sword rest in my hand
Till I have built Jerusalem
In England's green and pleasant land."

They laugh at Blake no longer. He never built his "Jerusalem in England's green and pleasant land," but he made men think.

NEWTON had almost finished mathematical calculations that were to prove the accuracy of his formula of gravitation: his emotion was so great that he was unable to continue. An assistant finished the calculations for him.

• • •

HENRY FORD probably could symbolize with Newton last week, when his first complete new car—body, engine, wheels, paint and all—came off the line, with Ford and his son, Edsel, looking on. The car was taken to Henry Ford's museum and put beside the fifteen million Ford of the old type.

• • •

Turn your back on fifteen million children that have earned for you fifteen hundred million dollars and start an entirely new family takes courage. Edison, who says that young men do the real work because they have "greater energy and will to work," will probably make an exception of his friend, Henry Ford.

• • •

THE new car, absolutely different from the old Ford model, makes 50 miles an hour easily, according to a description of the New York Times, 60 miles if desired. Ford has increased his production capacity so that he can turn out 11,000 of the new cars every day, more than three million a year. The maximum of the old car was 8,000 a day.

Sixty thousand cars are needed as samples for the Ford agencies alone, and 375,000 have already been ordered and a down payment made before the cars are ready.

FORTY Florida newspapers combined to publish, every two weeks, a special supplement, called "The Farm and Grove Section." It will supply people in and out of the state with full information about Florida's agricultural resources and the way to develop them. Frank R. Hammett of Jacksonville will have charge of this useful work.

WEALTH and fertility unlimited are in Florida's soil.

The "tourist" will always be one of the great Florida crops, but Florida in a few years will look back with wonder to the day when the tourist was the "principal" crop of the state and its chief financial reliance.

Industries will be established and factories built throughout Florida as they are building in California.

No one can estimate the future of that great state, only TEMPORARILY set back by real estate booming and foolishness.

"OLD TOM" of Pontypool, England's oldest working miner, says: "I am 77 years old. Man and boy I have been at it 70 years. I started as door tender at 12 cents a day, and now I am a blast fireman at $22.50 a week."

The old miner is proud to have worked up, in seventy years, from 12 cents a day to a little more than $1,000 a year—when he gets regular work.

• • •

"EVERYTHING I have accomplished in life I attribute to honest, hard work," says he.

Millions of patient workers like "Old Tom" keep the world going, making it possible for the highly prosperous to enjoy their foolishness. And possibly he is as happy as some in this country that have worked up to twenty-two millions in seventy weeks, instead of working up to $22.50 a week in seventy years.

"Old Tom" is rigorous at 77, has no worries, no bootlegger, no worries about the stock ticker, no desire for anything he hasn't got. That is not far from happiness, as happiness goes in this world. And he is strong and healthy.

MAY GET APPOINTMENT

Berlin, Oct. 25—It was reliably reported today in circles close to the foreign office that Herr Von Schubert, who succeeded the late Baron Von Maltzan as secretary of state, will be appointed German ambassador to Washington. The recent German ambassador at Washington, Baron Von Maltzan, was killed in an airplane crash a few weeks ago.

COUNTER PLAN PROPOSED IF ISSUE IS LOST

Council's Finance Committee Head Outlines Project Before Epworth M. E. Class

R. E. PRETTYMAN SPEAKER

Expect To Have Voters Act on Bond Issue for Memorial Roadway

Should the $500,000 bond issue proposed for enlargement of Marion's sewer system be defeated by voters of the city on Nov. 8, another proposal for remedying the local sewer situation will probably be submitted at a special election in the spring.

This was indicated last night by R. E. Prettyman, chairman of city council's finance committee, in a talk given at a meeting of the Smart Sunday School Class at Epworth M. E. Church. In connection with the sewer question, it is also expected to have the voters act upon a bond issue for financing the city's portion of the cost of constructing the Harding Memorial section of the Vernon Heights-blvd, Prettyman stated.

The sewer project proposed for the special election would provide for elimination of cross connections between the sanitary and storm water sections of the city's drainage system and the cost would probably not exceed $75,000, Prettyman stated.

Connections Important

Prettyman said that he regards establishing proper connections as the most urgent need of the city's sewer situation. It is practically imperative that the work be done, he said, as the state health department has issued orders to that effect.

In his talk to the Sunday School class, which was attended by approximately 80 of the members, Prettyman discussed both the sewer problem and the Vernon Heights-blvd project from various angles.

Plans for construction of the boulevard were halted recently when the city filed protest against the assessment levied by the county commissioners. Prettyman declared that it would be impossible for the city to pay its share of the cost, estimated at $40,000, during the coming year because of legal limitations on the issuance of bonds. He said that financing of the W. Center-st improvement will take practically all of the bond money the city will have available.

For that reason, council is seriously considering placing the boulevard project, as well as the sewer question, before the voters next spring. He believes that this would be the wise solution to both questions.

Predicts Defeat

Prettyman predicted that the $500,000 sewer bond proposal will be defeated on Nov. 8.

Councilman Prettyman was the principal speaker at the Epworth Church

ASK TRAFFIC LIGHT AT SILVER-OAK-STS

62 Property Owners Petition Council for Overhead Guide at Intersection

A petition signed by 62 property owners in the vicinity asking that an overhead traffic light be installed at the intersection of Silver and Oak-sts was presented to City Council at its meeting last night.

M. S. Lawler, Chestnut-st, who presented the petition, said he regarded this intersection as one of the most dangerous of any in the city. Especially is this so, he said, at noon when hundreds of school children from the Central Junior High School, Oak-st and St. Mary's schools, cross the intersection at a time when automobile traffic is the heaviest.

Several serious accidents have narrowly been averted at the intersection, he said. In one case a child was carried for a distance on the bumper of a car but fortunately escaped injury.

Realizing the danger to the local children, Chief of Police Thompson several weeks ago, installed a patrolman at the crossing during the busiest hours each day, because of the limited number of men on the force, it is only possible to have a man there during the busiest time, however.

Installation of a traffic light has been advocated by the chief of police for some time although he had never brought the matter to the attention of council.

The petition was referred to the police and the finance committees of council.

TO WELCOME RUTH

Lisbon Set to Greet Girl Flier and Haldeman

Lisbon, Oct. 25—All was in readiness today for an enthusiastic welcome to be tendered Miss Ruth Elder, pretty American aviatrix, and her flying companion, George Haldeman, who are expected to arrive here aboard the Portuguese steamer Lima from The Azores this afternoon.

The Lima is expected to arrive shortly after 5 o'clock. Frederick Dearing, American minister to Portugal, will greet the fliers officially when the vessel comes into the harbor, and a large crowd is expected to be on hand at the waterfront.

Miss Elder and Haldeman plan to fly from this city to Paris.

PROTECT BEALL FROM PLOT AS TRIAL OPENS

Expect Entire Day To Be Used in Selection of Hand Jury

Bucyrus, Oct. 25 — Extraordinary precautions were taken here today by authorities to protect the lives of important witnesses for the state, as the trial of Wilbur Hand, of Toledo, under indictment for participating in the robbery of the Commercial Savings Bank, at Galion, on June 28, began in common pleas court.

Acting upon reports furnished them by a Galion woman, who related she had heard two men and a woman discussing a plot to "get" the witness before the trial began, last week, authorities assigned officers to guard E. B. Beall, cashier of the robbed bank, and an assistant cashier, the state's star witnesses.

At noon the jury box was filled with tentative jurors, including four women, but as both sides still had many challenges left, it was not expected the jury would be completed before late afternoon.

The Commercial Savings Bank was held up shortly after it opened for business on June 28, when five men, of whom Hand is alleged to have been the leader, swooped down upon it, forced employes to lie flat on the floor, and escaped in an automobile with a sum variously estimated at from $75,000 to $115,000. Harry Zillick is held in jail as one of the participants in the robbery, awaiting trial, but at least three of the holdup men made a clean escape and have never been apprehended.

The plot to "put Beall out of the way" was reported by a woman whose identity had been kept secret by the authorities. She related how she had heard two men in a green automobile, discussing plans to "get" the bank cashier on the streets of Bucyrus last week, as she sat in her own car, while waiting for her husband. Later, she reported seeing the two men, accompanied by a woman, on the road in the vicinity of Galion, and a warning to be on guard was given by the woman and her husband to Beall, who notified the authorities. Beall positively identified Hand as the leader of the holdup gang.

The trial is attracting great interest throughout this territory, and the common pleas courtroom was crowded to capacity by spectators from Galion and other nearby towns today.

TWO YOUNG MOTHERS LEARN OF "RIGHTS"

Forced To Spend Year in Jail for Fraudulent Voting

Chicago, Oct. 25—The full significance of "equal rights," dawned on two unhappy young mothers today as they "put their house in order," preparatory to serving a year's sentence in the Cook County Jail.

The women, Mrs. Tina Wortman and Mrs. Leona Coine, were found guilty of fraudulent voting in the last November elections. Mrs. Coine became hysterical when County Judge Edmund Jarecki imposed a year's sentence on each defendant.

They were given several days to make arrangements for the care of their children. In pronouncing sentence, the court said:

"I don't believe these women were actual perpetrators of the fraud, but they lent themselves to it. I must assign the same punishment to them as I would give the men."

NUNGESSER-COLI NOTE VIEWED AS GRUESOME HOAX

Washington, Oct. 25—Viewed as a gruesome hoax, a reputed appeal for assistance, signed "Nungesser and Coli," has been picked up in a bottle washed ashore at Bodie Island, N. C., Coast Guard Station.

The appeal was printed on a piece of white cloth about nine inches square and, according to experts, of French make. It read:

"We are lost at sea off Halifax, N. F., please send aid immediately. Airplane destroyed. Finder please notify. Nungesser and Coli."

Officials here said today undoubtedly the message is false, pointing to the incorrect spelling of Nunzesser, to the fact that it was written in English and in typically American printing.

8,000 EASTERN STARS AT STATE CONVENTION

Toledo, Oct. 25—Eight thousand members of the Order of Eastern Star were gathering here today to attend the opening session of the three-day state convention tonight. The first session is to be held at the coliseum and will be presided over by J. Ernest Teare, most worthy grand patron, of Cleveland. Elections are to be held Wednesday afternoon.

PROGRESSIVES LINE UP BACK OF SEN. NORRIS

Frank O. Lowden First To Feel Edge of Political Axe

Conferences Held at Washington Serving as Forerunner of Campaign

Washington, Oct. 25—The gory business of killing off—or attempting to kill off—presidential candidates has begun in earnest.

The first to feel the axe is that of Ex-Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, who at this stage of the game is one of the quartette of principal contenders for the Republican nomination next June. He has been regarded as "the farmer's candidate" because of his unflagging work in the cooperative marketing field for the past six years.

Thumbs Down, Verdict

A little group of grain-belt senators, not without influence in their respective states, have just concluded a series of conferences here and the verdict has been thumbs down on Lowden. Sitting in these conferences were Borah, of Idaho, Brookhart of Iowa, Frazier of North Dakota, Norris of Nebraska, Nye of North Dakota, and McMaster of South Dakota.

No public announcement was made at the Lowden decision reached, but the significant announcement was made that Senator Norris would be backed for the nomination by Progressive elements throughout the grain belt. It has been to this same grain belt that Lowden's supporters have been looking for the major part of his strength.

Gov. Adam McMullen of Nebraska, for instance, already is on record as stating that Nebraska will send a Lowden delegation to the Republican convention. Yesterday, the Nebraska governor was challenged by Senator Borah to state whether he would oppose the sending of a Norris-instructed delegation from Nebraska. The inquiry is calculated to place Gov. McMullen in an embarrassing position before the voters of his state.

Norris Practically Chosen

It has virtually been decided that Senator Norris will be entered by the Progressive westerners in all the primaries of the grain-belt states, including probably Illinois.

"I will go to Nebraska and speak for Senator Norris if necessary," said Borah. "I will go into all states wherein he is a candidate in the primaries and as often as I can find time."

Other grain-belt senators also have pledged their support, and it is expected

TO SEEK REPAIR OF N. MAIN-ST TRACKS

Council Authorizes Solicitor To Send Request to C., M. & B. Officials

Having brought about the repair of the tracks of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co., on N. State-st, City Council now intends to turn its attention to the tracks of the Columbus, Marion & Bucyrus line on N. Main-st.

On a motion presented to council by Councilman J. A. Wilkins, at a meeting of that body last night the City Solicitor was instructed to get in touch with officials of the streetcar company and demand that some action looking toward permanent repair of the tracks be taken at once.

Repair of the tracks has long been a bone of contention between city officials and officials of the railway company. When pressure was brought to bear last year, a temporary filling was put in along the rails. This has practically all worked out, however, and the tracks are not in much better condition than they were before the work was done, it is pointed out.

In making the motion at the meeting of council last night, Councilman Wilkins said:

"We have been battling with the D., D. & M. for quite a while and now I believe it would be a good plan to insist that some action be taken at once to make a permanent repair of the tracks on N. Main-st."

KILLED IN SCUFFLE

Cleveland Boys Wrestle for Possession of Revolver

Cleveland, Oct. 25—Edwin Fisher, 10, lies dead here today, victim of a friendly scuffle with a school chum over a revolver late Monday afternoon.

Russell Harnett, 11, son of a policeman, obtained his father's pistol from a bathroom cabinet at the Harnett home, he told authorities, and declared Edwin, who came home from school with him, wanted to see it. When he refused, the scuffle ensued, he said, and Young Fisher was shot through the neck. He died before he could be removed to a hospital.

The Harnett boy was exonerated.

NOTED LAWYERS PLEAD TO "LADIES OF THE JURY"

Noted attorneys plead to Miss Bernice K. Heaton, left, and Mrs. A. L. Bailey, only two women members of the jury at Washington hearing the case of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and Harry F. Sinclair, New York oil millionaire, for conspiracy to defraud the government. On the left are defense counsel; on the right, prosecution. Of the prosecution, Maj. Peyton Gordon is district attorney, and Owen J. Roberts, of Philadelphia, and Atlee Pomerene, of Canton, O., are special counsel appointed by the president.

Man in Serious Condition After Covering His Body With Thick Coating of Tar

Albert Apple, 41, In County Jail; Believed To Be Mentally Deranged Due to Inability To Obtain Employment; Changes Story to Police

Afflicted with what is believed to have been temporary mental derangement due to being out of employment, Albert Apple, 41, last night covered his body with a thick coating of tar and as a result is in the Marion County jail today in a serious condition and suffering intense pain from his injuries.

While the tar was being removed from the man's body today, it was found that his flesh was horribly seared and blistered and that large sections of skin were torn off. He has been placed under the care of a physician by Sheriff James A. Deal who regards Apple's condition as extremely serious.

Apple, who has been employed in Marion as a laborer for several months, was picked up by police on N. Main-st about 4 o'clock this morning when he was discovered wandering along the street attired only in an overcoat as a carried his other clothing under his arm.

Tells of Robbery

His first story to the police was that he had been the victim of an attack by four young men who had taken him in their automobile to a point north of the city and coated him with tar after robbing him of $10. He said that the men had asked him to show them the way to Bucyrus.

Examination at the police station, however, showed that the tar had been applied only partially to his back, indicating that it might have been his own work. Further questioning brought a confession from him, police say.

Apple said that he purchased the tar, a pitch preparation used in roofing, at one of the local hardware stores yesterday afternoon. Last night, he stated, he went to the baseball grounds at Lincoln Park and hiding underneath the grandstand applied the tar to his body.

His only explanation was that he had become despondent over being out of work.

Remove Tar

Police turned Apple over to Sheriff James A. Deal early this morning and the sheriff called a physician, who advised removal of the tar by using grease. Deal supplied Apple with a bucket of lard and started him at the tedious and painful task of cleaning his body. The tar coating was from an eighth to a quarter of an inch in thickness, the sheriff says.

The sheriff telephoned to relatives of Apple at McKeesport, Pa., and informed them of his plight. They indicated that one of his brothers would come here at once.

Apple informed authorities that he has been rooming at the Commercial Hotel on N. Main-st.

DISMISS DRY CHIEF, HELD UNDER BOND

Serious Charge Filed Against Investigator for Federal Service

Washington, Oct. 25 — William B. Robinson, chief investigator of the federal prohibition service, was dismissed today by Dr. J. M. Doran, prohibition commissioner.

Immediately upon being advised that Robinson was held under $5,000 bond on charges of committing statutory offenses against a nine-year old girl, Doran demanded Robinson's resignation. Robinson promptly forwarded it to the department.

Robinson will be given a preliminary hearing Monday in Rockville, Maryland.

Robinson, who worked in the Columbus, O., postoffice before coming to Washington, was arrested Sunday night. He is 50 years old and the father of two grown sons, one of whom is an army lieutenant and an honor graduate of West Point. The father of the girl is an army officer station at Walter Reed Hospital here and a close friend of Robinson.

Conviction of the offenses charged against Robinson carries a maximum penalty of death in Maryland. The offenses charged against him are alleged to have been committed during the last four months.

MRS. KRESGE SUES

Marital Dispute of Millionaire and Wife Again In Court

New York, Oct. 25—The marital dispute between Sebastian S. Kresge, millionaire chain store head, and his wife, Mrs. Doris M. Kresge, became further involved today as the result of a new action for divorce filed here by Mrs. Kresge.

The divorce action followed a suit for separation which Mrs. Kresge filed some time ago. Kresge had previously sued his wife for a divorce in Michigan, but recently agreed to withhold proceedings in that case pending a final determination as to the jurisdiction of the New York courts over his matrimonial litigation.

The new divorce action was disclosed when a notice was filed by Olcott, Prime and Ernst, attorneys for Mrs. Kresge, that the case was to be placed on the calendar for Nov. 7. Notice was given by Max D. Steuer, counsel for Kresge, that the case would be defended and that dismissal of the action would be sought.

FARRELL WILL SUCCEED GARY AS STEEL HEAD

B. C. Forbes Makes Announcement; To Become Chairman

PICK MORGAN FOR POST

Banker Will Be Asked To Accept Chairmanship of Finance Committee

New York, Oct. 25—James A. Farrell, 61, president and operating head of the United States Steel Corporation for 17 years will succeed the late Judge Gary as chairman of this mighty world-wide enterprise, the November issue of Forbes Magazine will announce, it was made known today.

J. P. Morgan, long a power in world finance, may accept the post of chairman of the corporation's finance committee—a position also filled by Gary—according to B. C. Forbes, financial editor. If Morgan declines some other prominent banker will be appointed.

The banker chosen will be expected to devote his entire time to the colossal task of financing a concern doing a two billion dollar annual business, it was said.

Farrell's Success Cited

Rumor that either George H. Baker, Sr., or his son, George, Jr., would be tendered the appointment was spiked by Forbes, who declared the elder Baker is lightening rather than increasing his burdens, so that the younger financier has far too many problems, present and future, to tackle the steel post.

Farrell gained his power in the corporation nearly 20 years ago by his extraordinary successful record in developing foreign business, it was recalled in the article. He was told of his elevation to the presidency by J. P. Morgan, 17 years ago, after Morgan had been deeply impressed by Farrell's activities in foreign fields as head of the United States Steel Products Co., a subsidiary.

No Statement Made

At the offices of the steel corporation, the statement that no "official announcement as to Gary's successor has been made," was reiterated this morning, a quarterly meeting of the organization is scheduled for this afternoon.

Farrell authorized the following statement: "It is my understanding that no action as to the selection of a successor to Judge Gary will be taken until the November meeting of the board of directors."

ALUMNI HEAD QUITS AT O. S. U.

Dissention Over Poor Showing Brings Stormy Session of "Varsity O"

Columbus, Oct. 25 — Rumblings of discontent from the alumni and undergraduates at Ohio State University over the poor showing by the Ohio State team, which was climaxed by the 21 to 0 defeat at the hands of Michigan Saturday, resulted in the resignation of A. W. Raymond, president of "Varsity O," an alumni organization, it was revealed here today.

Raymond publicly resigned at a closed meeting of "Varsity O," in which Dr. J. W. Wilce, Ohio State head coach, answered criticisms of the team and the coaching, at a stormy session.

Raymond was a three-year letter man on the Ohio State team in 1910-11-12, and was named by Walter Eckersall as all-American tackle.

Dr. Wilce, according to those attending the meeting, explained that some of the trouble with the team's showing was due to internal dissention among the players, and that the removal of "one player" from the lineup was expected to have a beneficial effect. He denied published charges that the team was weak on fundamental football, and said its tackling and blocking were not fundamentally weak.

The coaching staff is planning radical revision of the lineup for the game with Chicago next Saturday, according to Wilce and his associates.

MACHINE GUN FIRE SINKS BOOZE AT SEA

Planes Attack Innocent Cases Idly Floating on Atlantic

Washington, Oct. 25—There is so much whisky and alcohol floating off the eastern coast that the coast guard is sinking it with machine gun fire from airplanes.

Official reports today showed that a coast guard plane, operating off Cape Cod, swooped down on 100 cases of innocent whisky, bobbing up and down on the waves and with a heavy machine gun barrage, sent them to the bottom.

In another air reconnaissance, 100 cases were sighted floating within a radius of a mile. Some of the liquor was dispatched by machine gun fire from the plane. Coast guard patrol boats were summoned by radiophone to dispose of the remainder.

"If the whales get drunk enough to attack transatlantic liners only the coast guard can be blamed," said a treasury aid.

"The ocean soon will be of sufficient alcoholic content to violate the Volstead act, in which case it probably will be padlocked."

EVICTION SUIT TO BE HEARD IN COURT NOV. 19

Columbus, Oct. 25—Suit brought against the United Mine Workers of America and 125 union miners of Belmont County by the Clarion Coal Co. and the Atlantic Contracting Co. will be heard in federal court here Nov. 19, according to an announcement made today.

The suit demanding the eviction of 125 union miners and their families from company houses of the coal companies was filed here recently.

DEFENSE SCORES IN FALL-SINCLAIR CASE

Prosecution Witness Substantiates Contention In Adroit Cross-Examination

Washington, Oct. 25 — The defense took a prosecution witness today in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial and materially strengthened one of its chief contentions through an adroit cross-examination.

A. A. Ambrose, former chief petroleum technologist of the interior department, who only yesterday had told court and jury that former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall was the dominant figure in leasing Teapot Dome Naval Oil Reserve to Harry F. Sinclair, was turned over to George E. Hoover, Sinclair attorney, for examination.

From Ambrose, Hoover drew the statement that he, as an expert, had advised Fall there was grave danger of drainage in Teapot Dome as a result of wells on 6,400 acres of adjoining land in the Salt Creek Field.

The defense contends Fall leased the reserve to Sinclair because of the drainage fear, and not because of a quarter billion dollar bribe, as charged by the government.

Ambrose said further he had once informally told Fall that "strip leases" would not be adequate to offset drainage.

Runaway Cement Mixer Ends Wild Rush Against Pumper in No. 2 Fire Station

THAT it isn't necessary for a fire truck to be careening madly to a scene of a fire, in order to meet with disaster, was demonstrated yesterday afternoon when a cement mixer which had been hitched on the rear of an automobile, ran through the open door at the No. 2 station on W. Center-st, crashing into the front of the pumper, punching a hole in the radiator and smashing a headlight.

A Chevrolet touring car, to the rear of which was attached the mixer by means of a light wire, was traveling west on Center-st and when just west of the administration building of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. the wire parted. The front wheels of the mixer struck a raised place in the street and turned sharply in front of the fire station. Passing up over the elevation in front of the station, the machine ran through the open door and crashed into the front of the pumper.

A wheelbarrow handle penetrated the radiator while the mixing drum smashed a head light. The pumper is the one to be replaced by the new truck which will be added to the equipment next month.

STUDY CHURCH CONSOLIDATION

One Hundred Ohio Pastors Also Study Marriage, Divorce and Films

Columbus, Oct. 25—Consolidation of churches in over-churched communities, a study of marriage and divorce, betterment of motion pictures, and educational activity in behalf of law enforcement against gambling, indecent literature and prohibition laws were being considered here today by more than 100 pastors of the assembly, or governing body, of the Ohio Council of Churches.

The meeting, at which arrangements are being made for the 1928 Ohio Pastors' Convention and the seventh annual school for rural pastors, opened late Monday and will be concluded today, following election of officers.

Dr. John M. Moore, New York, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches; Rev. E. F. Laird, executive secretary of the Ohio Council of Churches, and Myers Y. Cooper, president of the Ohio organization, were the chief speakers Monday.

"The real difficulty with organized Christianity today lies in the new condition of our times," said Dr. Moore at the Monday night dinner, "which are not being adequately met by the church. Nor will they be met until we achieve a fuller expression of Christian unity. That unity is beginning to make itself felt more strongly in such co-operative movements as the Ohio council which has made such outstanding progress."

"Laymen must cooperate with ministers to get the best possible results in the churches," President Cooper pointed out in his talk preceeding Dr. Moore's. "We must make the most influential forward looking laymen of this state understand that here is a great, Christian enterprise, organized along lines of efficiency and practicality, as well as the highest idealism, that is worthy of the best efforts of any man.

"We must place before the laymen our great goal of uniting the Christian forces of the state for the task of developing a christian citizenship in a Christian commonwealth," Cooper concluded after pointing out that laymen know the evils of competition and the value of co-operation.

Dr. Lamb reviewed the work of the council in eliminating wasteful competition in Ohio by consolidating churches in sparse or over-churched communities. He said there are now in Ohio more than 50 consolidated churches where people of different denominations are worshipping and serving together in harmony.

Pastors of 17 denominations were represented at the meeting. Twenty denominations, he said, have enrolled for the 1928 Ohio Pastors' Convention to be held here in January.

Block Mayor Thompson's Lakefront Bonfire of All British Propaganda Books

Attorneys, Acting as Citizens, Obtain Injunction Restraining Executive from "Destroying Public Library;" McAndrew's Trial Continues Today

Chicago, Oct. 25—Chicago's war against Great Britain, led by "Mayor" William Hale Thompson, had [illegible] additional fronts today, when it was reported from [illegible] was spreading British influence in the schools.

Additional battle took place in circuit court here when two petitions were filed to restrain the mayor and his associates from destroying library books said to contain pro-British propaganda.

Edward J. Bohac and J. Kentner Loesch, two Chicago attorneys, were named as acting in their rights as citizens and tax payers," filed the injunctions to restrain the "destruction of public property."

The controversy arose from efforts to oust Superintendent of Schools William McAndrew who, Mayor Thompson charges, has been spreading British influence in the schools. It is charged that McAndrew used history textbooks which reflected on American Revolutionary heroes.

Dangerous Precedent

The school book inquiry inspired the charge that many pro-British books were on the shelves of the Chicago Public Library. Mayor Thompson then ordered the library searched, stating that all suspicious volumes would be collected on the lakefront and burned.

In his plea for a restraining order, Bohac declared the destruction of these books would be a dangerous precedent, that if some faction hostile to other national literature got control of the city hall, there would be a precedent for destruction of more books.

Both suits set forth that the citizens have an equity in the books, since they were purchased with taxpayers money, that burning of them would constitute destruction of public property without due process of law.

"The only parallel to this bonfire proposal," said Bohac, "is in the burning of the libraries of Carthage and Constantinople, which caused irreparable damage to civilization."

Bonfire Halted

The lakefront bonfire was temporarily halted to await ruling on the injunction suits. U. J. "Sport" Herrmann, a trustee of the library and named by Mayor Thompson as high executioner in carrying out the work of destruction, agreed to await the court's decision and to be governed accordingly.

Investigation and selection of the books to be thus consumed was delegated to the library administration committee at a meeting yesterday of the library trustees.

Carl B. Roden, head librarian, said it would be a "pity" to destroy the suspected volumes, and suggested that they be segregated in a cage where they could be read by trained historians who would not be likely to be influenced by their contents.

Superintendent McAndrew was absent from the city yesterday and his trial was continued until today.

FIRE IS CAUSED BY BOY WITH MATCHES

Men from No. 2 Station Called to 632 Darius-st by Rubbish Blaze

The proverbial small boy with matches produced the usual result of such a combination yesterday afternoon when firemen from the No. 2 station answered a call to a vacant house at 632 Darius-st where a fire was discovered in a pile of rubbish near a shed.

While firemen were extinguishing the blaze a small head appeared around the door of a shed in an adjoining yard, the owner of the head apparently enjoying the excitement he had produced. When approached by firemen, the boy took to his heels and when captured matches were found in his possession. The blaze was extinguished with chemicals without a loss.

Washington

Scolding of Fess by Coolidge Is Termed "Worst Talking-To"

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25—To Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, Washington gossip awards the medal for getting the worst presidential "talking-to" of the Coolidge administration.

Fess himself admits he was "scolded." He was the first outside tell that he'd been "on the carpet."

The best guess is that he thought his wisest plan was to own up, rather than have the story leak out with exaggerations—though "they say" this was an incident it would take a mighty vivid imagination to exaggerate.

* * *

FESS will be recalled as a very early caller on President Coolidge, following the latter's issuance of his "do not choose" announcement, "out west."

"But he'll be drafted," added the Ohio senator, right away.

Others said the same thing at first, but presently they got the idea that the president didn't like it and shut up. They may have the same notion still in the back of their heads, but they stopped harping on it after the first few days.

Not so Fess. He kept it up.

* * *

NOW, if Fess had listened sharply, he would have overheard certain cynical remarks politicians were making, in explanation of his insistence upon the "drafting" of the president, to run again.

He would have heard them surmising that he (Fess) cared a blame sight less about the president's own welfare, of his party's, than he cared for his own (Fess') senatorial prospects next year, which he probably figured—so the cynics opined—would be materially improved by a renewal of the Coolidge candidacy at the same time.

This was not a nice interpretation to put upon Senator Fess' attitude, but unfortunately it is not illogical, from the standpoint of politicians who incline to impute selfish motives to others.

* * *

PAINFUL as it is to record, President Coolidge was one of those who suspected, at least, that Senator Fess was speaking about two dozen words for himself and only one word for him (the president) in all that talk about drafting" him in 1928.

We know this is so, because the president accused Fess of it point blank.

Senator Simeon D. Fess

We know that, too, because Fess testifies to it, and it wouldn't be like him to make such a thing up.

Fess called at the executive offices a few days ago—with not an inkling that anything was wrong—to discuss a little matter of Ohio patronage, so he said. He entered all smiles. He came out red as a beet, and obviously much perturbed. Asked what was the matter, he told.

* * *

HOWEVER, Fess stands pat. Even if it ends their friendship, he says he'll continue to insist on the "drafting" program in 1928.

That ought to prove he's disinterested.

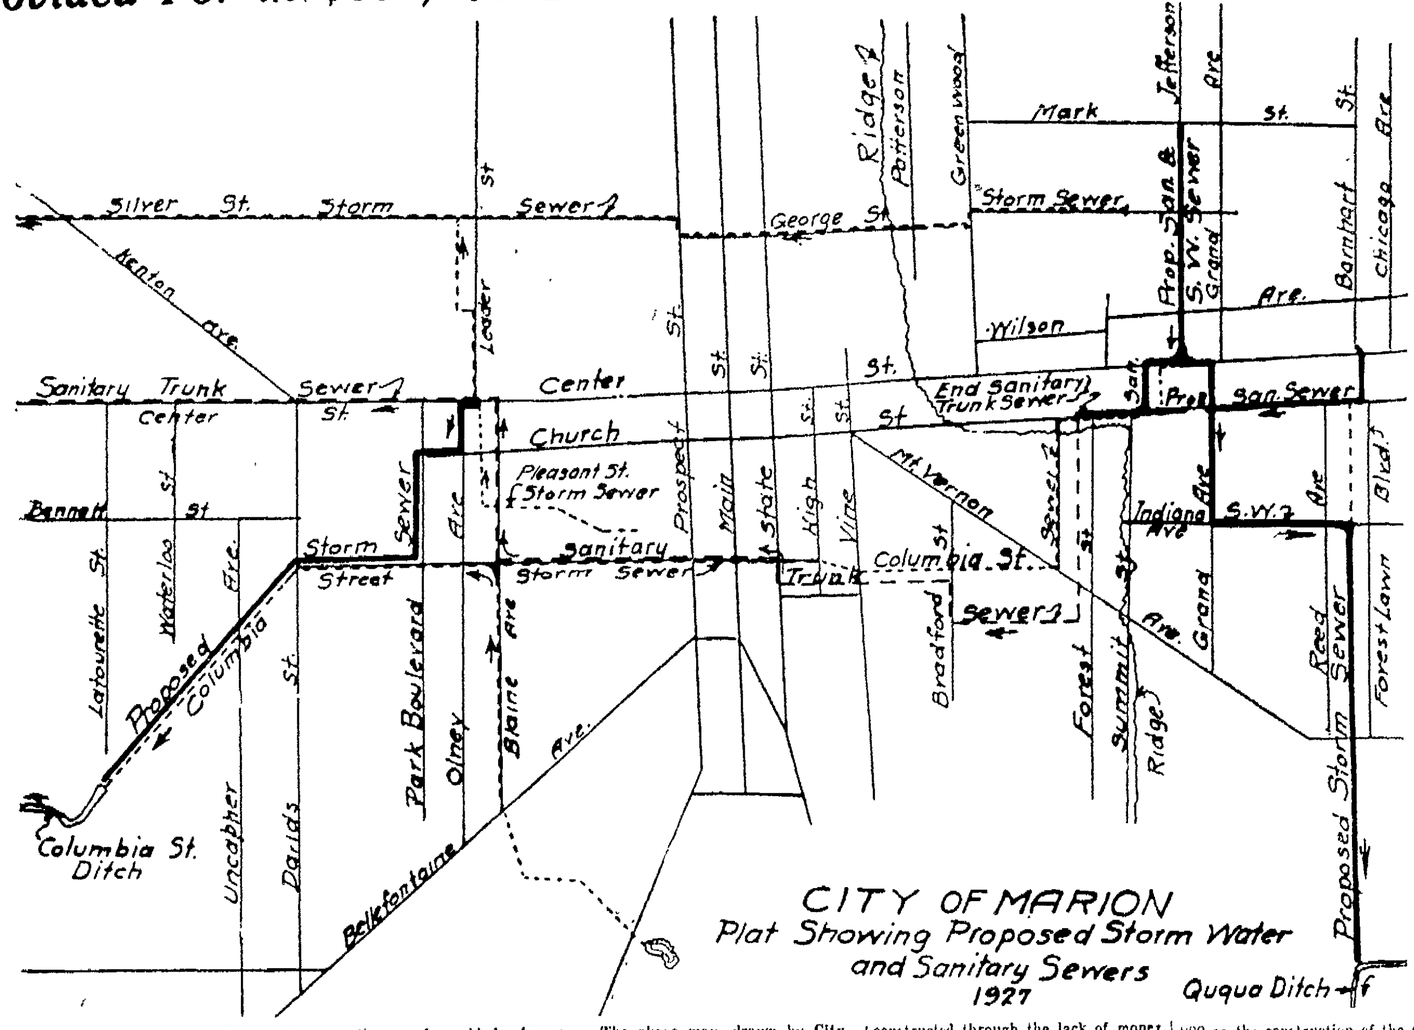
City Engineer Tom S. Cathers Outlines Proposed Route of Sewers Provided For in $800,000 Bond Issue to be Voted on at Election



The above map, drawn by City Engineer Tom S. Cathers shows the proposed routes of new storm and sanitary sewers. The heavy, black lines represent the routes of the proposed sewers and the dotted lines show the course of those already installed.

With the following statement by City Engineer Tom Cathers today, tentative plans for the construction of the two storm water sewers, the continuation of the present sanitary sewer system in the eastern part of the city and the correction of cross connections, declared responsible for the pollution of Rock Swale ditch and the Scioto River, are explained in detail.

The plans as presented in the communication are only tentative, however, but they are, in the opinion of the city engineer, the plans that, in a general way, would be followed by any sewer engineer who hired to make the survey and prepare definite plans.

The communication follows:

"It is proposed to construct two main storm water sewers, extend the new main sanitary sewer eastward and north correct misconnection where house taps are carrying sewage into storm water sewer, (this is an order from the State Board of Health,) and roof water into the sanitary sewers; and probably construct other main branch storm water and sanitary sewers in some congested districts where the present sewers are overloaded.

"The outlet for the proposed east side storm water sewer will be in the Ququa Ditch, about one quarter mile south of Mt. Vernon-av. It will follow north along the east side of the Vernon Heights addition, across Mt. Vernon-av, thence north in the alley between Reed-av and Forest Lawn-blvd, thence west in Indiana-av to Grand-av, thence north in Grand-av to Center-st; thence west in Center-st to Jefferson-st, thence north in Jefferson-st to Mark-st. This sewer will probably be five or 6 feet inside diameter. It will be deep enough at Mark-st to be extended north to Fairground-st in the future.

"The northeast part of the city, north of the railroads, is now drained to the west by Silver-st sewer.

"The ends of this system at Jefferson-st are too shallow to be extended to the east and north.

"The natural north and south drainage ridge through the city, runs north in Summit-st to Church-st, thence in Church-st to Greenwood-st; thence northwesterly to about Baker-st, and Center-st; thence north across the railroads and near Patterson-st to the fairground.

24-Inch Pipe

"Nearly the whole area east of the ridge is drained to the west by the Silver and Columbia storm water sewers.

"The storm water sewer at Center-st and Charles-st is a 24-inch pipe. The new sewer at that point would probably be a four-foot sewer, which would carry about five and one-half times as much water. There now exists a three-foot storm water sewer in Indiana-av and the alley between Reed-av and Forest Lawn, from Elm-st to Church-st. This sewer could be cut into the proposed sewer where it makes the bend to the west at Indiana-av. The north end could be extended across Church-st and east to Pennsylvania-av, also north in Forest Lawn-blvd from Church across Center-st to Wilson-av at Chicago-av.

"The storm drainage on E. Center-st is now carried by a pieced-together system, leading into the Columbia-st sewer. Flood conditions have been unusual in the east part of the city this season, but they indicate the immediate need of larger storm water sewers.

"It is also proposed to extend the present main sanitary trunk sewer from its terminus at Church-st and the first alley east of Elm-st, eastward and north to Center-st and Jefferson-st. From this point it can be constructed in the same trench with the proposed storm water sewer in Jefferson-st to Mark-st. The present sanitary sewer in Center-st at Charles-st is a 10-inch pipe. The proposed sanitary sewer will be a 24 inch pipe and be about seven feet deeper.

"At one time this summer during a hard rain, water stood within two feet of the top of the sanitary and storm water man-holes at Church and Charles-sts, which would indicate that both the sanitary and the storm water sewers are much too small.

"It also is proposed to construct a storm water sewer in the west side of the city, to relieve the present flood conditions in the west side business district and for future relief to the Silver and Columbia storm water sewers.

Future Work

"The area from Pearl-st west to Park-blvd and from Columbia-st to the Big Four railroad, is drained into the Silver-st sewer through the Pleasant-st and the Leader-st storm water sewers. The Leader-st sewer is a three and one-half foot brick arch. This area would be drained by the proposed sewer and would relieve the Silver-st sewer to such an extent that it should give adequate service for years to come.

"The route of this storm sewer has not been definitely determined. It will require careful surveys and study maps before a route is selected. The construction of the main sanitary trunk sewer in Center-st from Blaine-av west, and the repaving of Center-st from the Hocking Valley railroad tracks to Davids-st and the proposed paving of Center-st from the Hocking Valley railroad tracks east has somewhat stunted the idea of constructing the new storm water in Center-st westward from Leader-st, as originally planned. A practical route seems to be to follow the line of the Columbia-st storm sewer, from its outlet at the Columbia-st open ditch to Park-blvd, thence to Church-st, in the east lawn of the boulevard, thence in Church-st and Olney-av and Center-st to Leader-st.

Relief Sewer

"A relief storm water sewer in Center-st from Leader-st to Main-st was included in the original plan. This sewer, however, will be constructed in connection with the paving of W. Center-st next year and will not alter the original plan in any way.

"A main branch sanitary sewer should also be constructed in Kenton-av, from W. Center-st to Silver-st. This connection was included in the original plan, but was not constructed on account of the lack of funds. The object of constructing this sewer was to eliminate the present route of the Silver-st sanitary sewer through the Erie yards, from Kenton-av and Silver-st, to a point just north of the west line of the stock yards property. Several times in the last few years, this sewer has broken down under the Erie tracks and may give serious trouble in the future.

Lacked Money

"The Kenton-av branch and the Jefferson branch and the main sanitary trunk sewer from its present terminus at Church-st and the alley east of Elm-st, to the eastern city limits, were not constructed through the lack of money, due largely to the difference in the construction cost of rock excavation at $6.50 per cubic yard and an estimate of $4.50 per cubic yard.

"The State Department of Health, has ordered the city to abate the nuisance in Rock-Swale Ditch and the Little Scioto River, which has been caused by sanitary sewage getting into the storm water sewers.

"It has been suggested, that this may cost as much as $50,000. Part of the bond issue money will be used to correct these misconnections in house laterels which carry sanitary waste into the storm sewers and roof water into the sanitary sewers.

"There are several districts where the main sanitary and storm water sewers are overloaded and should be relieved by larger sewers. If sufficient money is available, I would recommend that these districts be given relief.

"It is true that the new Sewage Disposal Plant and the main sanitary sewer, cost a lot of money, more than we had originally estimated. But when contractors bids vary as much as $138,000 on the construction of the Sewage Disposal Plant and as much as $200,000 on the construction of the sanitary trunk sewer, it can hardly be expected that an engineer can put an exact estimate on the cost of this work.

"The amount of money we have asked for in the bond issue is conservative. It will not construct all the sewers that we need but will relieve the worst flood conditions for the present.

"We are asking for a bond issue amounting to $800,000. Of this amount approximately $500,000 will be used for storm water sewers, $150,000 for the sanitary sewers and $50,000 for changing house connections that are tapped into the wrong sewer.

"It would seem more logical to have a complete survey, maps and estimates of the work, before the voters are asked to support this bond issue, but this requires considerable money and we do not have it to spend for this purpose beforehand."

CONFERENCE TO BE HELD BY OFFICIALS

Type of Construction To Be Used on N. State-st Will Be Decided

A meeting of officials of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co., and city officials, including City Engineer Tom Cathers and City Solicitor George Geran, to decide on a type of construction for rebuilding of the electric company's right-of-way on West Center st. will be held within the next few days, it was announced at a meeting of City Council last night, by William T. Moloney, attorney for the company.

The attorney told members of council that engineers had gone over the plans for the work submitted by City Engineer Cathers at the last meeting of council and which provided for the expenditure of approximately $63,000, and had some suggestions to make. He asked that a meeting be held in order that a type of construction could be decided upon that would be satisfactory to both the city and the company.

Mr. Moloney, who was accompanied by L. C. Stang, superintendent of the power department of the company, also asked that ordinances be prepared for the acceptance of rate contracts by the company from the Pollak Steel Co., and the Osgood Co., the latter for an electric furnace.

The law provides, it was explained by Mr. Moloney, that when a rate contract such as this is made, it must be adopted by the city council in order that other manufacturers with like problems, may attain the same rate. It is expected the ordinances will be adopted by council at its meeting in two weeks.

It has developed that the 1928 budget of the New York City board of estimate is, in round numbers, $575,000,000 instead of $525,000,000, as at first announced, the little matter of the difference of $50,000,000 having been suppressed. Possibly the board decided upon the serial plan of announcement to lessen the shock.

Conditions Ideal for Accidents.

Nearly a score of traffic fatalities marked the week end, a Columbus wire told us yesterday. As a matter of fact, the traffic death toll exceeded a score.

It may be urged that the unusual traffic to and from the Ohio-Michigan game was largely responsible, but that view will not bear scrutiny. The record shows the fatalities occurred all over the state.

No, the real explanation is the weather and the date. Saturday and Sunday were beautiful days throughout the state. Both were days of bright sunshine and the latter was exceptionally balmy for this season of the year. There was appreciation of the probability that there would not be many more such days for motoring during the present year, and the result was that about everybody who owned a car was out driving it.

Conditions were ideal for driving. The roadways were dry. No mud on the paved highways or wet leaves to make them slippery. Everything spelled safety for driving, and statistics show that when conditions for safety are best, advantage is most often taken by motorists to drive beyond the bounds of safety with the resultant accidents which so often follow such driving.

The New C., D. & M. Station.

This may be said for the present Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric company station: it is easy of acess from the up-town business section. And that is about the sum total of all that may be said for it. It is far too small; it is inconvenient in its arrangement; it is unsightly inside and out and its tracking space so meager that almost hourly blockading of north State street, even though such blockades have been of short duration always, have been matters of annoyance to those having occasion to travel over that street at the time of the arrival or departure of interurban cars.

Consequently, the news, some days since, that the C., D. and M. would start work on a station with adequate trackage upon its property on west Center street was decidedly pleasing, especially since the announced plans show that the new station is to be all that the present station isn't; that it is to be a beauty spot rather than an eyesore.

There may be some apprehension on the part of various lines of business regarding what the effect of moving the station to the new location is going to be, especially so since there is a strong probability that C., D. and M. interurban cars will start and end their runs at the station. There always is some apprehension in cases of the kind, but we have noticed that it usually proves unjustified. Business usually adjusts itself to new conditions and goes on just the same.

We recall that, when the plan of moving both the uptown Erie and Big Four stations to what is now the Union station was proposed, some of our people actually thought that business in up-town Marion would go to the bowwows; that the fate of the up-town business district was sealed. Well the two stations off Mill street to the east of State were moved, but the up-town district is still doing business at the old stand.

And so it is very likely to prove in the present case. In fact, the change may prove just such another blessing to the central business district as was the moving of the railroad stations in juxtaposition to it to the Union station in the West Side.

The claim is now being made that Emerson lost his memory at an earlier period than he otherwise might have lost it, owing to his habit of eating pie for breakfast. Looks like a gratuitous fling at those marvels of culinary art—the pies grandmother used to bake.

Passing of Patrick Kelly.

The death of Patrick Kelly at his home on east Church street, early Sunday evening, marked the passing of a citizen highly esteemed alike throughout the city and county. Through the splendid services he rendered the county as sheriff and in other capacities of county scope, as a result of his occupation as a contractor and in consequence of his one-time connection with the Marion Water company, his acquaintanceship was unusually large, and we feel safe in saying that all who knew man honored and respected him as an honest, upright and square-dealing man at all times dependable and worthy of faith and confidence.

Though a strong, outspoken partisan politically at a time when partisanship was far more pronounced than at present, he was never offensively so, and it speaks volumes for the character of the man when it is said that he had as many friendships close and strong in what was to him the opposition party as he had in his own.

Patrick Kelly never accumulated riches, but he did accumulate and retain till his dying day the respect, esteem and good will of his fellow-men, who will honor him in memory till they, too, pass on into the "Great Beyond."

There's a story going the rounds of the press to the effect that Jack Dempsey is in reality Tudor Domsa, the son of a Roumanian minister, and it is so unusually full of interesting details that, for the life of us, we can't decide whether it's straight or nothing more than a Tex Rickard emanation to fan interest in another $3,000,000 Tunney-Dempsey contest.

"We have waves of news," says William Lewis Butler, of the New York state crime commission, "and we think we are having waves of crime." And it's not impossible that Mr. Butler has hit squarely upon the reason why we hear so much more of the reign of crime today than we ever did before, especially so, when it is considered that crime today is exploited in type as it never was before.

Poems That Live.

NEW MOON ABOVE MT. TOM.

[From a train window.]

I will forget the brave bright city
For a little space.
My eyes are weary of the incessant passing
To and fro.
It is a pleasant thing to turn and go
Out where the rusty meadows lie
In the cool dusk;
And a young forest of slim trees
Stands in the twilight,
Tinged with a sudden flame and ecstasy;
And scarlet woodbine in a cobble-hedge,
And fields of goldenrod, that regal flower,
Are mine, just for the taking.

I can remember
How the wide orchards looked in blossom time.
Now, all upon the countryside
Their radiant promise is fulfilled in these
Fruit-laden red and russet apple trees.

All is accomplished now.
The grass is purple as it longed to be.
Oh, yes, my friend,
Spring yearns to autumn in each bud and blade.
These ferns, the color of old gold,
Held this desire in every curling froud.

There lies a field as garnet as deep wine;
And there on a brown ridge
Wild asters toss their lavender and gray.
Oh, every color, every hue is out today!

And now, wait—hush!
Look, in the wide, sweet sky,
There in the east—
A dim gray thread,
Faint as a silver shadow in the mist
The young moon rises.

The orchard and the meadow and the hill
Are breathless, too.
Above the windy wood the driven leaves are flying.

And now the misty thread grows clear and white,
A curve of light,
Like a firm line traced by a steady hand.
It is more lovely in that heaven of blue
Than any lovely thing.

—Barbara Young.

Dry Out Quickly After Storms.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A few days ago I witnessed a terrific rain-storm. It came up suddenly, surprising hundreds of persons and wetting them to the skin.

Does it do harm to get wet?

It all depends on what you do afterward. If you do the right thing it does you no more harm than your morning bath.

If you stay in your wet garments it will do you harm. This is particularly true of wet shoes.

Of course, we do not believe all the things about "taking cold" that used to be accepted as gospel. We know now that adenoids, diseased nasal sinuses and tonsils, bad teeth and gums, indigestion and all the other infections have much to do with attacks which used to be blamed on "drafts," wet feet and exposure to the weather.

Some of us are laughed at for talking about "lowered resistance," but no experienced physician can doubt that anything which weakens the strength prepares the way for many diseases. The chilling after a drenching and the unfavorable effects of wearing wet shoes for a long time will certainly prepare the way for the entrance into your body of the ever watchful germs of disease.

You must not thing you can go on indefinitely in the abuse and neglect of your precious body. Blessed with a strong constitution and powerful frame, you may not for years, defying the elements, apparently unaffected by things which will send a weaker relative to bed or the hospital. But not forever. In the language of Ecclesiastes, the preacher:

"Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth, and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth; and walk in the ways of thy heart, and in the sight of thine eyes: but know thou, that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment."

Just as sure as can be, you will reach a day when outraged nature will demand payment. You can not use your body as you will and not be called into judgment.

Don't stay in wet garments. Get out of them into dry clothing. Have an extra pair of shoes where you work. Change into them and let your street shoes dry out before making the return journey.

We are always growling about "trouble." We don't like to do "unnecessary things." But I assure you, getting rid of wet garments is not doing an unnecessary thing. Nothing is unnecessary which is a precaution against getting sick.

If you feel chilled after exposure that is a sign you have suffered from the experience. It is important to restore the circulation. The best way to do this is to get into a hot bath and after a good soaking, go to bed.

Be sensible about the care of your body. A few precautions now and then will help to ward off illness. Every illness escaped is just so much added to the expectation of life.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

P. N. Q—I have just had my tonsils removed and wish to build up in general. Would you advise taking cod-liver oil?

A—Yes, combined with lots of rest, careful diet, plenty of outdoor life; and be sure to keep the system clear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

PERSONIFYING THE WEST.

Senator Nye, of North Dakota, who is always serving notice and asking people to mark his words, has been telling the Washington chamber of commerce just what the West is going to demand and do in the presidential campaign next year. Concerning candidates its mind is not yet made up. Senator Norris would suit, if only he had a chance of being nominated, which he himself admits that he has not. Governor Lowden may possibly fill the bill, though he has not yet sufficiently "clarified" himself. But one thing certain, according to Senator Nye, is that the next president must not only represent the West but must distinctly "personify" it.

Quite a role of impersonation! It would take a well-graced political actor to fill it. He would have to be a lightning-change artist, passing quickly from cowboy to farmer, then to miner and industrialist and railroad man and banker. Senator Nye seems to have in mind something of the Westerner of old-fashioned drama and fiction. That hero was a—

"Brave-fisted rough, a shirt-sleeved Cid,
Whose blundering heel instinctively finds out
The goutier foot of speechless dignities."

Even North Dakota knows that such a figure is no longer typical of the West. The fact is that the West is as varied and versatile as any other part of the country. It has as many men of many minds unable to agree among themselves as has the East. In public life it has all kinds of representatives. No man could fuse them all into one. If Senator Nye's aspiration were to be realized, and a president to arrive who should really personify the West, he would have to repeat the miracle of the hero of Southey's poem, and enter Washington by seven gates at once.—New York Times.

THE CARROLL PAROLE.

The parole from the Atlanta federal prison of Carroll, the New York theatrical producer, is, perhaps, a matter of slight importance. The reaction of the country to his nauseous and notorious exploit was gratifyingly spontaneous and wholesome. Carroll and all those with him connected in his "artistic" demonstration of salacity and bibulous brutality were quickly made to understand the enormity of their offense—at least to the public's sense of decency. Conviction and physical punishment were his allotment by the trial court and oblivion properly became the portion of the complacent "lady" in the case.

Few men are prudish, but the majority of men balk at certain degrees of shameless depravity.

Reference to his parole scarcely would be worth while, except that, in Carroll's case, emotional reportorial expression once more maudlinly attempts to weave about the individuality of a convicted wrongdoer an aura of perverted sentiment, of slobbering sympathy. As, for example:

"Carroll's voice as he talked to newspapermen was softened with a shyness that verged on the morbid. Something of the torture under which his sensitive being collapsed when he was being brought here last April still lingered."

One is tempted to wonder how an organism so "sensitive" could have survived the shock of seeing a naked bacchante in a tub of booze, inviting everybody to "come on and have a drink." But such suggested delicacy of soul and refinement of sensibility fail somehow to arouse either our sympathy or respect.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

AS MONEY TALKS STYLE.

The dollar dictates the style in feminine apparel, according to Paul Poiret, creator of Parisian fashions. Mr. Poiret is on a visit to New York. The importance of his subject and the weight attached to his opinion are indicated in the interviews with the notables arriving on the Ile de France. His utterance was given precedence over that of the movie star who arrived with a new divorce among her possessions. The French expert in style amply justified this prominence when he said that New York women were the best dressed of all the women of the world.

But this tribute does not appear to be based on appreciation and admiration of the judgment of American women. French women were no longer the best dressed, said this eminent authority, because they no longer had the necessary money. Money, he added, had something to do with the fact that New York women are the best dressed in the world. And doubtless were he to visit Chicago, Keokuk, Omaha and other points West, not to speak of the East, he would admit that New York women have no monopoly when it comes to the fashions.

An aspect of the situation not to be overlooked is that here is another of the effects of the war. It made New York the financial capital of the world. At the same time it made New York and other American women the best dressed in the world. The dollar talks in terms of fashions as well as in terms of international indebtedness. Let the American eagle scream.—Boston Transcript.

The Way of the World.

Undertakers in convention decide caskets ought to be in warmer colors—rose and purple. How characteristic of the day and world in which we live and die! We have added color to everything in the last decade. Clothes are brighter, music is colorful, motor cars match the rainbow. The logical next step is to put color on coffins.

Professor A. J. Todd, scientist, says the ideal age for marriage is twenty-five for men and twenty-two for women. He has it all figured out that this is best for the race. Other scientists have figured it out before and will keep on calculating. Doubtless they are right. Reason is likely to be righter than instinct. But what are they going to do about it? Trouble is, few folks are really rational. It isn't quite natural to be logical. People will marry when they will, and that's all there is to that. Twenty-five or twenty-two? Who cares?

"Women talk too much." So says Sara De Forrest, president of the New York League of Business and Professional Women. They talk about getting equal salaries with men. They talk about mixing private affairs with public service. They worry about many things. President De Forrest says they ought to do more demanding and less talking. She should be more patient. Women have been in the business world but a few years. They have gone a long way. Perhaps talk has helped

A. F. Hockenbeamer has been made president of the Pacific Gas & Electric company. This is a great public utility. The presidency is a big job. Young men will be interested to know that this man was once a janitor and then a stenographer. And the hopeful thing is that in this world of expanding affairs there is more chance for that sort of thing today than there ever was.

It is encouraging, here and there, to find a man ahead of his time. Coach Stagg, head of athletics in Chicago university, is one of those men. He takes a long look and a big look at sports. He has perspective—the thing few of us have. He knows that to develop manliness and character is greater than to win a game. He is trying to put a finer spirit into sport. He will not get far, but he will be a pioneer and he will have helped to start something. The day will come when we will think less of the professional aspects and see the true possibilities of sport.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Oct. 25—New York is loveliest as fall, like a blue hour, merges into white winter. There is a winey tang in the air and the entire metropolis seems poised for the gaiety ahead. There is the happy thrill of rehearsing songbirds at the Metropolitan. It is "the season."

Fine mansions are unboarded and blaze with lights. And social calendars are filled until the after holiday hegira to Palm Beach and Miami. The Rialto heavens are studded with new and old stars. The musical extravaganzas have not yet begun to show tarnish.

Shopping becomes a delight and the window displays drooping so through the summer bloom with new life. Cabarets and supper clubs reopen and make their bow for after theater patronage. Everybody "who is anybody" is back in town tanned and supercharged with vitality from their summer loaf.

Fifth avenue glitters with gaudy limousines. The doormen under the hotel canopies are caparisoned with impressive new uniforms. Old Lavender Joe is back on the curbs with his satchel of sachet. The nattily-dressed clubmen and the smartly-dressed ladies join the five-o'clock parade. Romance seems just around the corner.

School children are brown as berries from the seashore and mountains rush frosty breached through the streets. In Central park are the tiny closed cabs drawn by magnificent cobbed horses with plum liveried coachmen and groom. The bridle path is filled with caracoling chargers.

Over on Broadway the matinee idols strut and fancifully-dressed chorus girls gaze longingly into the jeweler's window. In cafes and other places is the reunion of a home-coming—folks are greeting friends they have not seen for months.

It is the time of year when the entire town babbles: "There is no place like New York." And at that especial period there isn't. Best manners are in evidence. Nerves have not yet been rubbed raw by the push and hurrah. New York is at its best and that best is unbeatable.

An actor who not many years ago was a river showboat juvenile is one of the slickest Broadway dressers. He has among other sartorial conceits cuff links and tie pins to blend with each of his eighteen suits. He wears a white silk sash in lieu of an evening vest and two tiny platinum silver bracelets. But he has not entirely outgrown early environment. He appeared at rehearsal the other day and when he removed his coat he was wearing suspenders.

Everything seems to have been done to save suspenders for posterity. First they were called galluses, then suspenders and today in smart haberdasheries they are braces. But even with John Barrymore reported wearing them there are few buyers.

Little Broadway cafes flatter real celebrities and near by listing dishes and sandwiches on their menus named for them. It gives the idea those honored are regular patrons. It was served to the beloved and beautiful actress one day at the Waldorf and pleased her so the inventor, Oscar, graciously honored it with her name.

Views of Those in Public Eye.

DR. ERNEST HATCH WILKINS.

Ernest Hatch Wilkins was born at Newton Center, Massachusetts, September 14, 1880. He began his career as an instructor of romance languages at Amherst college in 1900, going from there to Harvard university in 1905. In 1912 he went to the University of Chicago as professor in the college of literature, science, and the arts, becoming dean of the school in 1916. Dr. Wilkins was inaugurated president of Oberlin college in 1927. During the World war he served as associate executive secretary of the war personnel board.

Dr. Wilkins thus defines the function of colleges:

"The college exists because society desires that youth be taught. Teaching, then, is the thing primarily expected of the college. Teaching is, moreover, precisely what the college itself most desires to do, most delights in doing, is best qualified to do, and does best.

"The modern college has, to be sure, an extraordinary variety of functions; but teaching is by so far the most important that all the others taken together can not rival it in significance. Many of the other functions are indeed by-products of the teaching. Teaching is, in the last analysis, the function of the college.

"The quality of the teaching is the measure of the success of the college. If the teaching is good, the college is a good college, even though its plant be inadequate and its athletic stars be dim. If the teaching is poor, the college is a poor college, even though it have a 'Freshman' week and a psychiatrist. If the teaching is good, the college justifies its existence and deserves encouragement. If the teaching is and remains poor, the college deserves extinction.

"Teaching is done by teachers. The essential life of the college is in its faculty as such is most alive.

"The central concern of all those interested in the vitality of the college—the faculty itself, the administrative officers, the trustees, the alumni, the students, and the whole community, immediate or remote, wherein the light of the college shines—should be such as to facilitate good teaching: and that the college should actually teach to the best of their ability."

Postponement Ordered in Contract Suit of Napoleon Banking Concern

Postponement of hearing was authorized this morning by Judge Scofield in the suit of the First National Bank of Napoleon against Myrtle E. Schindler and G. A. Gelbaugh when a motion was filed asking that Gelbaugh be ordered to be more specific in allegations of "fraud and collusion" made in his answer.

The suit is based on an alleged guaranty contract signed by the defendant, and is scheduled for hearing before a jury in common pleas court.

After overruling the motion filed by the bank, Judge Scofield granted postponement of the hearing at request of attorneys for Gelbaugh, who was given until Dec. 1 to file a supplemental answer complying with the court's decree.

Jury Dismissed

The jury was dismissed until Oct. 27 when the suit of B. R. Feit and others against M. A. Griffis is scheduled for trial. This is an action brought for collection of money alleged to be due on a contract.

In the suit postponed today, it is charged that the defendants, Gelbaugh and Myrtle E. Schindler, signed a contract agreeing to guarantee payments to the bank of claims held against H. D. Schindler.

The case was heard last spring and judgment for $1,250 was returned against each of the defendants. A new trial was granted on motion filed by their attorneys.

In his answer, Gelbaugh charged that his signature to the contract was obtained through fraud and collusion. It was this charge which must be made in greater detail under terms of the motion sustained by the court today.

The motion was filed by Mouser, Young & Mouser of this city, and James Donovan of Napoleon, attorneys for the bank. The firm of Wiedemann & Patton represents Gelbaugh.

Divorce Granted

One divorce was granted and another suit for divorce dismissed by Judge Scofield in the court of common pleas yesterday.

Myrtle Courser was awarded a decree in her suit against Ambrose Courser on grounds of gross neglect.

The suit of George W. Butcher against Blanche I. Butcher was dismissed after a hearing in which the judge found that there was not sufficient grounds for a decree. The wife withdrew her cross petition and the suit was dismissed at the costs of plaintiff.

Files Suit

Charles F. Ballenger filed suit in the court of common pleas today against James E. Ballenger and others, asking for partition of the estate of Johanna Ballenger, who died April 4, 1922. The petition asks for sale of the property, consisting of three lots in Claridon and one lot in Caledonia. An accounting of rents collected by T. J. Ballenger is also asked. The suit was brought through C. H. Conley, local attorney.

Sale Ordered

An alias order of sale was issued today in the partition suit of Amos P. Cox against Susie P. Codding and others. The action involves a property in Prospect, which was offered for sale by the sheriff, Saturday, and no bids were received.

Given Judgment

Judgment of $500 by default has been ordered in the attachment suit of Leonard D. Penn against C. Benjamin Holt.

Marriage License

A marriage license was issued in probate court today to Carroll Diffany, 21, dairyman, Prospect, and Freda Mae Evick, 18, Prospect.

ARE YOU a "TOXIC"

Those Dizzy Spells

Take something to take seriously—those dizzy spells and floating specks. They usually indicate a serious poisoned condition of the system which may end in kidney or heart trouble and high blood pressure. It all starts with our abnormal living habits which put too great a strain upon the vital organs, especially the liver. The liver becoming "lazy" or sluggish fails to cleanse the blood of toxic poisons formed in food waste. Then a toxic condition of the system which results in serious diseases of the blood, heart and blood vessels.

It's agreed that occasionally the liver needs a little help. Nothing better for this as medical men have found, than pure ox gall. Ox gall is a remarkable natural stimulant for the human liver, cleansing and restoring it so that it can properly perform its function of purifying the blood and keeping the system clean and wholesome. But you want to be certain of getting the genuine ox gall. This is assured by asking for Dioxol tablets, each of which represents 20 drops of pure ox gall in dainty and tasteless form. Dioxol tablets come in a plainly marked package and cost less than 2c each—at good druggists.

that when the full grain-belt strength is mustered here with the convening of congress early in December, the Norris-For-President movement will get into full swing.

The westerners are not privately harboring any grandiose illusions about nominating Senator Norris, but they are determined to hae a progressive rallying post which will serve them until the Republican presidentisl situation becomes more clarified.

On the issue of agricultural relief alone they could support Gov. Lowden almost to a man. They pointed out to inquirers, however, that on other issues Gov. Lowden is not from their viewpoint, an "ideal Progressive candidate." For instance, one grain-belt senator stressed the point that one of the chief planks in the Progressive platform is condemnation of excessive campaign expenditures.

"How could we support Gov. Lowden in lew of 1920?" he asked. "The vanswer is we can't."

Thus far, the Republican-Insurgents from the West have decided to go it alone, and not invite any Democratic Progressives into their conferences, as was done in the LaFollette-Insurgent move in 1924. It has been decided to keep the movement for the time being at least a purely Republican-Progressive move.

FEES OF COUNTY ARE INCREASED

Failure of Truck Owners To Register Weights Correctly Causes Addition

Failure of truck owners to register correct weights of their vehicles when applying for this year's licenses has resulted in Marion County receiving $615.73 additional fees assessed against them by state inspectors, records at the county auditor's office showed today.

The county has received their remittances from the state for extra assessments levied against the truck owners, the third payment being deposited yesterday in the county treasury. The check, which came from the state auditor, was for $355.35 and represented assessments made against 20 truck operators in the city of Marion.

First Check

The first check, amounting to $255.65, was received several months ago and was followed a few weeks later by one for $34.73.

All of the money goes into the road and street maintenance funds of the county and the various communities where the truck owners live.

These collections were in connection with a statewide investigation made by state inspectors which resulted in extra truck license assessments amounting to more than $100,000 according to reports from state headquarters. The extra collections in Franklin County alone totalled approximately $5,000.

A majority of the assessments were caused by unintentional errors on the part of truck operators in listing the weights of their vehicles, officials state.

To avoid underestimating truck tonnage in the future, the state automobile department has decided that beginning next year trucks owners must present to the license agencies slips from reputable scale operators, showing the actual weight of machines and the licensing authorities will stamp on the bills of sale the time of issuing licenses.

Few Tag Sales

Monthly sale of automobile licenses in the county is now at the lowest figures of the year. The October settlement at the county auditor's office shows that 155 licenses were sold during the last month, resulting in total receipts of $779.94. This was exclusive of the extra collections made as the result of state inspectors' work.

Half of the month's collection went to the state. The other half was distributed as follows: City of Marion, $241.35; Marion county, $104.20; La Rue, $29.37; Prospect, $11.05; Caledonia, $2; New Bloomington, $2.

This was based on 98 licenses issued on cars owned in the city of Marion, 11 in La Rue, four in Prospect, one in Caledonia, one in New Bloomington and 40 in the townships outside of municipalities. Half of collections in the townships goes to Marion county and half to the state.

F. M. PASCHALL CASE ORDERED CONTINUED

Accused Man Says He Believed Front Door Was Open

Hearing of the case of Frank M. Paschall, arrested yesterday morning after he had locked Constable Scott Pelt, in the sales room of the Knight Motor Sales Co. on S. Prospect-st and which was scheduled for today was continued until next Tuesday by Municipal Judge William R. Martin this morning.

The case was continued at the request of Judge Grant E. Mouser, attorney for Paschall who appeared in court this morning with his client.

Constable Belt had gone to the sales room yesterday morning to serve replevin papers and while he was in the room, Paschall went out and locked the rear door. After trying in vain to get out the constable called the police and the door was broken in. Paschall's arrest followed a short time later. He was released on a $1,000 bond for his appearance in court when wanted.

The sales room has been closed, enough attachment and replevin papers having been filed in municipal court to take over all the furniture and equipment, it is said. Herbert Huffman, former manager of the sales room has left the city.

Paschall denied today that he was interested in the motor company. He also declared that he was under the impression the front door of the garage was open when he locked the rear door of the garage.

WINTER WHEAT SEED PRACTICALLY ALL IN

Majority of Marion County Farmers Have Completed Fall Planting

Winter wheat seed in Marion county is practically all in the ground, according to Roland L. Leeper, service director of the Marion County Farm Bureau. Some farmers still have a few acres to sow, Mr. Leeper state, but the majority have completed their fall planting.

The wheat acreage this fall will be slightly above average it was estimated by Mr. Leeper. Many farmers have increased their acreage due to the prevalence of weather favorable to planting.

October was the month most favorable to planting wheat this year, Mr. Leeper states. Most of the wheat in this county was planted this month as danger of the Hessian Fly was not pronounced at the minimum until after Sept. 20.

The wheat crop harvested this year was slightly lower than average in the county Mr. Leeper estimates.

A PROGRAM equally brilliant and entertaining was presented by members of the Lecture-Recital Club last night in the ballroom at Hotel Harding. The program was the first to be presented by members of the club this season and afforded an evening of real musicianship for the unusually large audience made up of members of the club and guests. The season was formally opened two weeks ago when the club members presented Sergei Barsukoff in a guest artist concert at the Marion Country Club.

Miss Marian McNeil and Mrs. Kathryn Kunkle Ried, sopranos, this city, and Mrs. Charles Gallinger, contralto, Bucyrus, contributed to the vocal numbers on the program and the piano groups were presented by Miss Grace Durfee, Miss Mabel Baldauf and Miss Elizabeth Kenan.

Miss McNeil, accompanied at the piano by Miss Wanda McMahon, opened the program with two delightful numbers, "Captive," Lalo, and "Minor and Major," Spross, and Miss Durfee and Miss Baldauf combined beauty of tone, technique and shading in their presentation of Rachmaninoff's "Second Suite" arranged in four movements for two pianos. The number included "Introduction," "Valse," "Romance" and "Tarantella."

Mrs. Ried chose for her selections two lilting airs which seemed particularly suited to her pleasing soprano voice, "Countess You Dance Sprightly," Lamaire, and "Mur, Mr. Robin," Spross. Her accompaniments were played by Mrs. Harry T. Williams.

Miss Elizabeth Kenan revealed her ability as a talented pianist in her interpretation of two movements of a Beethoven sonata, and her number proved one of the most delightful of the evening. The program was concluded with two numbers, "Pilgrim's Song," Tschaikowsky, and "Spring-Waltz," Arditi, sung by Mrs. Gallinger, an out-of-town member of the club. Mrs. Gallinger's numbers afforded an excellent display of her unusual range and the colorful technique of her voice. She was assisted at the piano by Mrs. B. W. Shafer, also of Bucyrus.

Mrs. Woods announced the four isconcerts to be presented by the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Minneapolis and New York Symphony orchestras this season in Columbus and in which Marion music lovers are interested. Three and possibly all of these organizations will have soloists appearing on their program, she stated. Data regarding the concerts may be procured from Mrs. David Walter Evans, of the Lecture-Recital and Marion Symphony Clubs.

Members of the club chorus will rehearse tonight at Harding High School, it was announced by Mrs. James C. Woods, president of the Lecture-Recital Club. The next meeting of the club will be in two weeks when John Lacey will be a guest soloist.

CHAPTER XXXVI

A GREAT office building is a very ... and lonely place after ... hours.

It seems to be shut off from all the rest of the world—like a tower of ivory in an enchanted forest.

The stillness in the Nye-Naylor building was so thick that it could be cut with a knife that night when Sally ... stepped out of the elevator at ... floor.

She started along the corridor, and ... feet made no sound on the ... floor.

Through the open door of John Nye's ... she could see his dark head bent ... some papers on his desk. But ... of turning in, she unlocked the ... of Mr. Peevey's room and stepped ...

On a shelf above his desk was his ... and a box of paper napkins. Sally ... down the plate and laid the two ... she had brought upon it, ... them with a clean paper nap... Then she filled a glass with water ... the cooler, and set it with the plate upon Mr. Peevey's Japanese tray.

John Nye did not raise his head as she walked into his office, carrying it in her hands. She laid it on his desk, shoving it gently towards him across the polished mahogany top.

"What's this" he asked again, and looked up at her with startled eyes.

Sally tried to answer him, but the words tangled themselves up in her throat. She could feel her face flaming and her hands began to shake and grow ice cold.

"Sandwiches!" she managed to blurt out at last, and then after another moment, "For you. You missed your dinner." She wished with all her soul that the velvet-covered floor would open and swallow her quietly up, in that moment.

"I see," John answered in his deep, quiet voice.

And he seemed to see, too, that she was greatly embarrassed, for he stopped looking at her and picked up one of the sandwiches.

He bit into it. "Very good sandwich!" he said with appreciation. "And very nice of you to bring it to me. You were right—I was hungry."

Then he deliberately carried Mr. Peevey's lacquered tray over to the window sill and set it there. He finished his meal, standing there with his back to the room.

By the time he turned around, Sally was herself once more.

She was busily typing some letters that he had laid upon her desk, and above her head a green-shaded hanging lamp made a rich shower of brightness all around her. That brightness lay like sunshine on the glossy waves of her hair, the tender curve of her cheek, and the beautiful sweep of her dark lashes.

• • •

She did not look up, and so she did not see that John's eyes studied her for a long time. He lighted a cigaret and sat down in his chair, leaning back comfortably and watching her with a smile.

"Thanks for my dinner," he said, not speaking until she looked up at him with those deep, gay eyes of hers.

Sally shrugged her shoulders. "I hated to bring you those common, dried-up drug store sandwiches," she told him. "I wish I'd had some baked ham of my own. I bake it with brown sugar and mustard all over it and cloves stuck into it."

He glanced over at the firm little brown hands that were locked over the edge of the typewriter. Clever, capable hands, they were. Beautiful hands, in spite of their roughness.

"You're the best typist who ever worked for me," he said with conviction. "Don't tell me you're a good cook besides."

Sally knew she was one. She knew it just as well as she knew that her name was Sally Jerome. But all she said was:

"I ought to be a good cook. I've been doing the cooking at home for a long time—"

Then she stopped and her face went blank. She remembered, suddenly, that Millie had taken all the credit for the only meal John Nye ever had in their house.

The worst of it was that he remembered it, too.

"Who got the supper the night I was at your house?" he asked, bluntly.

And Sally, blushing like a poppy, told a white lie in her loyalty to Millie. Her everasting and senseless loyalty to her.

"Millie helped me," said she, and slipped a new sheet of paper under the roll of her typewriter.

But John Nye knew!

For several moments there was silence in the big office at the very top of the tall Nye-Taylor building, broken only by the woodpecker tapping of Sally's fingers on the typewriter keys.

Then John Nye spoke again. "I told you I was taking on a new salesman in the morning, didn't I?" he asked. "And it looks as if I'm going to be able to use some extra help here in the office. So when old Hank Peevey lets you go, just remember that there's a job waiting for you over here, will you?"

"If he lets me go—why, what do you mean?" faltered Sally, open-mouthed with amazement.

John looked nonplussed. "Perhaps I shouldn't have said anything. But he told me the other day that he's thinking of shutting up shop very soon. He's pretty well along, you know, and he doesn't have to keep busy any more. I imagine he kept that office open more to take up his time than for any other reason."

Sally stared at him in sick amazement. Why, it was like knocking the very earth from under her feet to tell her that Mr. Peevey was closing up his funny old office! And she still owed him almost a hundred dollars! ...What would she do about that? Where would she go?

• • •

"I can't come here to work, that's certain," she said to herself, her solemn gaze on John Nye's face. "I never could stand watching him and Millie all day. I'd go and wash dishes in a restaurant first!"

And then the thought of Aunt Emily's wayside inn came to her....Yes, she could go to Aunt Emily if nothing else turned up. She could take a chance with Aunt Emily.

The telephone on her desk rang. It sounded as loud and alarming as a fire bell in the silence.

She picked up the receiver. "This is Mr. Nye's office," she said evenly, in a cool business voice.

"You, Sally?" Ted Sloan answered her. "Say, I'm up in your house. Your mother's having a fit about something and wants you to come right home. I'll be right down in the boat to get you." He hung up.

"I've got to go home," Sally told John Nye. "Ted Sloans coming down for me. But I'll keep right on working till he gets here. I was supposed to get supper tonight for my mother and father, and I reckon they're getting pretty hungry."

It was 8 o'clock. The bells of some downtown church were chiming the hour as she spoke, their voices clear and silvery on the night air.

"What's wrong with Mother?" she asked Ted when they were in his shivering, jumping automobile, speeding towards home.

"How do I know? Don't ask me riddles, Sally. I'm in low gear tonight," he said, just missing a street car. "All I know is that I ran up to your back door to see if you were washing dishes and she was sitting there, crying her eyes out. She told me to get you right away."

"Poor Mother! She shouldn't have tried to get supper. She always gets light-headed and dizzy when she does any work," she answered, her voice full of concern and tenderness. "I suppose my father wanted something hot and she stood over the cook stove too long. Step on the gas, Teddy."

He stepped on it. He loved speed. He should have been an ambulance chaser!

By some miracle they were not arrested on the way home.

Sally started up the dark back steps of the flat building while he put his little car into the garage.

Before she reached the top he called to her:

"Wait a minute, Baby!"

She waited, wondering what he wanted.

Up through the warm heavy darkness he came to her.

Perhaps it was because she was wistful and quiet after her evening with John Nye. Perahps it was because the night laid its ancient spell of darkness and star-shine upon young Ted Sloan.

But anyway, when he reached her he put his arms around her and kissed her—twice, very quickly—before she could stop him.

"Oh, Sally, be a sport and marry me!" he said, and eveen if his words were slang, his voice was strained with longing. "Sally, I hate to think of you shut up in an office, late at night, with John Nye—"

"John Nye!" repeated Sally, with great scorn, rubbing her lips with her handkerchief under cover of the darkness. "Why, I'm as safe with John Nye as I'd be with Beau! Why, he's crazy-cracked over Millie! He's as good as married to her! In another six months, I'll bet you money that he's my brother-in-law!"

Also under cover of darkness, young Mr. Sloan shook his head unbelievingly .... He had looked 'em all over, so he told himself. And "no guy in his right senses would even see Millie when a hot looker like Sally was around!"

"And besides, how could I marry you? How could I marry ANYBODY, even if I wanted to?" she wanted to know, and her voice was gentle. She knew just how Ted felt—and she was sorry for him. It was no fun to be in love with someone who didn't care a bit for you. It hurt. Didn't she know?

"Why couldn't you get married?" Ted asked doggedly, as they walked across the upper porch, past the old painted rocker and the geranium boxes and the milk bottle box.

"Well, because of Mother. Who'd look after her?" asked Sally.

"Your father's here now," Ted answered her, as he bent over to fit the key into the lock on the kitchen door. "Maybe he'll stick around and do his duty, for a change—"

"Stop! Don't you say another word about my father!" Sally's breast was rising in quick anger. "You just keep your thoughts about my family to yourself, Ted Sloan!"

She banged the dor shut in his face as she vanished into the kitchen.

• • •

And he went down stairs, promising himself passionately, as he had promised himself the same thing scores of times before, that he was through with that spit-fire forever and ever—that he would forget that she was on the face of the earth from then on!

But, of course, he would do no such thing.

And right down at the bottom of his soul he knew it.

Peter's Adventures

The Star's Daily Story for Boys and Girls

BY FLORENCE S. VINCENT

TAKEN AT TWILIGHT

MRS. POSSUM jumped to her feet and faced Peter.

"It doesn't surprise me so very much to learn 'twas you who made all that noise, boy! No sooner was I stretched out flat on the ground than I guessed it might be, but I stayed where I was until I made sure. It never pays for a Possum to take chances. 'Safely first, safely last, safely always.' No Possum's life would be worth a dry leaf should he fail to follow that rule—just once!" Slowly a grin widened Mrs. Possum's big mouth.

"I don't wonder at your asking me why I didn't run away! You Two-Legs always take to your heels at the first alarm; but then, poor things, there is nothing else for you to do. You don't know how to fool your enemies; you have got to get out of their way. My children ran and hid—that was enough! It was my duty to stay right where I was. Once a hunter spied me he'd not think of chasing the youngsters until he had first captured game almost at his feet—which would be me, of course. I was willing to take my chances on slipping from under Woof-Woof's nose. If any Two-Legs should be quck enough to catch me he'd have to be twice as clever to keep me. Ha! Ha! Ho! Ho! Did you ever hear how I fooled old Uncle Rastus?"

"No," said Peter. "I never did. Who is Uncle Rastus?"

"Uncle Rastus is a Two-Legs, but he is black—just as black as a night without a moon! Round his face is a ruffle of fluff as white and as soft as the fur of a cotton-tail rabbit. Uncle Rastus is the best coon hunter in these parts—he boasts that he catches the sly creature every time. Well, one fine afternoon he set out to free a possum. Now, a coon and a possum are two different things, and if I do say so, as I shouldn't, a possum is a powerful lot smarter than a coon.

"I was taking my last twilight doze high up in the crotch of a tree when suddenly, before I could get my eyes open, to say nothing of springing from the branch, something had grasped me by the tail. I twisted and turned and squealed and squirmed, but I couldn't get away. I was fairly and squarely caught, trapped because of my own carelessness. If only I had slept with one eye open!"

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

There was a white frost on everything when me and Jubilee poked our heads out of the window this morning, and before I got him to take the rope in his teeth so that he could be let down I thought there was going to be a white frost on me. He just sat up looking at me and wouldn't open his face for the rope, so that finely I had to open his mouth for him and put the rope in it, and even then he didn't want to bite down on it. I bet he thinks he owns me instead of me owning him, and it would be funny if he would trade me off to some other dog sometime like I can trade him off to another fella if I feel like it.

Spider Gutwaltz and Mealy brang a lot of black walnuts to school with them today, and are all going out on the Hogback on Saturday and get a lot of them. I am going to take our horse and Red's father's old wagon. Red's father is a huckster and only hucks with one wagon at a time. We got a brick from around back of the schoolhouse and were helping Spider and Mealy crack and eat their walnuts on the front steps, and Mush's wife came around and told us to get out of there and stop making a muss for her to clean up.

Just then the teacher came and told her to let us alone, and that she was hired to clean up, and I was picking out nuts and once in a while I would hold one out and I would put it in, and twice as often I would put the meat in my own mouth, and she was so excited watching the teacher and Mush's wife that when I made a pass toarist her mouth she opened it and I put a whole walnut in that wasn't even cracked. She certainly opened her eyes and looked surprized. The walnut wasn't cracked, but she cracked me one on the side of the bean that made me roll down the steps and think the side of my face was knocked flat. And there was a couple of tears came out of her eyes and rolled down her cheeks, and I think she slammed me before she thought; and Feeble said, "Here, let me wipe your tears," and Mealy held up her face and shut her eyes and Feeble had her handkerchief out, and she had squoze a green walnut shuck till it was juicy, and she wiped it all over Mealy's face under the eyes, and all at once Spider saw what she was doing and gave her a kick that knocked her all over Mealy and they rolled down the steps together, and I paisted Spider. He ain't no gentleman. No gentleman will hit a lady unless it is his sister or his wife or something. Mealy is a sight.

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

MARY'S expressive face clouded so palpably as I told her that it would not be possible to arrange an interview with Phillip Veritzen before Dicky left on Monday, that I felt impelled to utter another low-toned warning.

"Your face is altogether too eloquent," I said, still looking intently at the pretended injury to her finger which she had made the excuse for crossing to my side. Then in an audible voice I gave my verdict upon the finger.

"I don't think it amounts to anything," I told her, "but if you'll come to my room before you go to bed I'll fix it up until morning. Then Aunt Katherine will look at it."

"Thank you," she said decilely, and returned to her seat and the anxious inquiries of Noel Veritzen and young Mr. Jackson concerning the supposed injury to her finger. From the tone and manner of both youths, the casual onlooker would have been led to believe that an amputation at the least threatened Mary, and I found myself smiling at the fresh illustration of the never-failing appeal to a youthful gallant of the slightest discomfort attached to the lady holding temporary possession of the organ he calls his heart.

It did not take me long to discover, however, that there were two people in our little circle who did not share my amusement. Of course both were too poised to show open annoyance, but I saw Philip Veritzen's long and shapely fingers lightly tapping the arm of his chair, and remembered that I had observed the action to be indicative of strong displeasure upon the part of the great producer.

Miss Lincoln voiced her feeling in an equally camouflaged but more effective manner. After a low-toned word to Dicky, she leaned forward and spoke to me.

"Dear Mrs. Graham," she said, her exquisitely modulated voice making a carol out of the simple address, "will you forgive me if I go home now? I do dislike going, for I have enjoyed it all so much, but I am more upset than I thought possible by my foolish terror over that owl, and I feel that I really ought to go home."

As well as if she had spoken the words loud I knew that what she wished to voice was a request that lovely Mary Harrison be sent to bed, thus giving her a chance to talk to Noel. But that being impossible she had done the next best thing. She supposed, of course, that her departure would be the signal for the other guests to go. At least I knew she was saying from the depths of her outraged vanity, that one cavalier would be missing from Mary's chair, as Mr. George Logan Jackson, who had brought her, must take her home again, no matter how strong his inclination to linger near Mary.

Secretly, I was perfectly willing to speed my young neighbor on her way. I was beginning to feel the depression which generally follows a nervous tension such as mine had been during the excitement of the evening, and for another reason than that animating Eleanor Lincoln. I was glad of the opportunity to remove from Phillip Veritzen's view the picture of his son and young Mr. Jackson in open rivalry for Mary Harrison's smiles.—Copyright, 1927, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Walter Johnson Only Big Leaguer to End Career in One Uniform

BY FRANK G. MENKE

If Walter Johnson lives out his big league years in a Senatorial uniform, he will be about the only man of modern baseball times, who lived a lengthy big league lifetime—and finished in the same regalia in which he started.

No man in more than 25 years of baldom has endured for a long period of time and gone into the sunset of baldom wearing the uniform of his rookie years.

Honus Wagner in Minors

Honus Wagner began as a member of the Louisville club in the old National League, and ended up as a Pirate.

Napoleon Lajoie started as a Phillie, jumped to Cleveland, and concluded his career as one of the Athletics.

Christy Mathewson's first big league job was with the Reds. He was traded to the Giants and then swapped back to the Reds.

Max Carey started as a Pirate, lingered there for nearly a generation and now is with the Dodgers.

Zach Wheat, one of the fading veterans, made his major league debut with the Dodgers long years ago, and now is utility outfielder for the Athletics.

Ty Cobb Started as Tiger

Ty Cobb started for 22 years as a Tiger—and now he's a hireling of Connie Mack.

Tris Speaker, first a member of the Red Sox, was sold to the Indians and now is one of the Senatorial group.

Rube Waddell wore plenty of different major league uniforms.

Babe Ruth started as one of the Red Sox.

Frankie Frisch got under way in the big league as a Giant; Rogers Hornsby commenced as a Cardinal. They have switched uniforms.

Burleigh Grimes, once a Dodger, now is a Giant.

Eddie Collins started as one of the Connie Mack crew, was moved to Chicago, and now is back in Philadelphia.

Rube Marquard, who was a major leaguer for almost a generation, wore a great collection of different toggery.

Bancroft With Phillies

Dave Bancroft, a Phillie in his early years, later a Giant, was a player-manager of the Braves and is now with the Dodgers.

George Mogridge, another veteran, has been shifted around considerably during his big league career.

Stan Coveleskie, once an Indian, now is a Senator.

Jacques Fournier, wore so many different uniforms, that even he has lost count.

George Burns, Carl Mays, Art Nehf, Roger Peckinpaugh, Jimmy Ring, Eppa Jeppa Rixey Ed Roush, Billy Southworth, Hank Severeid, Dutch Reuther, Wally Schang, Grover Alexander, "Spec" Meadows, Vic Aldridge, Bob Shawkey, Jack Quinn—all of them have been around in the majors for a long, long time.

But not one has endured in one lineup.

Sales, trades or releases have shifted them from one club to another.

Even the elderly Urban Faber, who has been with the White Sox for so long that most folks have a notion he was born right in that ball park, was cast off by the first major league team that harpooned him—the Pirtes, That was back in 1910. They gave him another chance in 1911—and turned him adrift. He went to the minors and lingered there until recovered by the White Sox in 1914.

Johnson Stands Alone

Ray Schalk started with the White Sox 15 years or so ago. He is still with 'em. But the wagering is about 5 to 1 that he finishes up elsewhere.

So Johnson alone, of all the starry stars of the past 25 or 30 years, has a chance to hang up the unique record of having been in baseball for 15 or more years, and finishing in the same uniform he wore in his debutting years.

RECEPTION PLANNED FOR HOODOO GAME

Wooster Will Play Thirteenth Game with Bishops Saturday

Delaware, Oct. 25—Coach L. C. Boles, an Ohio Wesleyan graduate, who will bring his undefeated Wooster College eleven here Saturday will be the guest of honor at a home coming reception which Coach George Gauthier of the Battling Bishops now is busily arranging for him.

The reception will be held Saturday afternoon at Edwards field which will be appropriately decorated with chalkmarks five yards apart.

The receiving line will include the 11 huskiest boys on Ohio Wesleyan's football squad and they will arrange to meet their Wooster guests as near as possible to the goal line defended by the Presbyterians.

To complete arrangements for a successful reception, the Battling Bishops are searching for a large, round goose egg which they intend to present to the Wooster eleven as a memento of the occasion.

Coach Boles has never before brought a football team to his alma mater in his 12 years as Wooster coach. The game, however, will be the thirteenth between the two schools and is certain to be unlucky for somebody. Such being the case and with Hallowe'en approaching and everything, the Bishops are planning carefully this week to make sure that all of the mysterious evil attending that mystic number "13" shall be Wooster's lot.

Ohio Wesleyan has won seven and Wooster five of the 12 previous games between the two teams.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

Syracuse Packs Penn State Defeat, Liniment and Stars for Nebraska

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 25—With the 9-6 Penn State defeat behind them, Syracuse gridders packed their liniment and implements of battle today and headed west for the inter-sectional duel with Nebraska Saturday.

Coach Lew Andreu announced that his squad would get in an afternoon of practice Thursday at Stagg Field, Chicago, arriving in Lincoln at 9:30 Friday morning.

While many fans attributed Saturday's defeat to the absence of Capt. Ray Barbuti from the backfield, there was still little indication today that he would see action against the Cornhuskers. His injured knee is still keeping him out of practice.

MAN WITHOUT A BASEBALL COUNTRY,

Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, subject of one of the most baffling baseball problems in years, frankly admits being a "man without a baseball country."

Conceded to be one of the three premier outfielders of the major leagues, Cuyler was relegated into boxscore obscurity last season, when he was fined and benched by Manager Donie Bush of the Pittsburgh team.

Kiki won't be with Pittsburgh next year. That's a certainty. But directors-in-chief of the disappointing Pirate team, from President Dreyfus down to Manager Bush, mysteriously refuse to divulge their plans. As for Kiki, he admits being in the dark.

"I don't know what it's all about," he says. "I'm like the guy without a country—as far as baseball is concerned."

STETCHER CHAMP

Joe Pins Farmer Browning With Scissors After 52 Minutes

New York, Oct. 25—Joe Stecher today still holds the title of heavyweight wrestling champion of the world in New York State. Recognized in this state as the title holder, Stetcher retained his crown with Farmer Browning, of Wichita, Kan., last night after 52 minutes of wrestling, in what was to have been a finish bout.

The match failed to continue after Stecher had pinned Browning to the mat with a body scissors after 52 minutes.

YOUTH SCORES AGAIN AS JOHNNY DUNDEE LOSES TO CANZONERI

Famous "Scotch Wop" Outpointed in Every One of 15 Rounds

New York, Oct. 25—Youth added another notch to its score of inevitable victories today, and the name inscribed therein belongs to one who almost had the sporting world believing in the "come-back" miracle.

The name belongs to Johnny Dundee and youth is represented by Tony Canzoneri. The downfall of the famous "Scotch Wop" came last night at Madison Square Garden before a small crowd of about 8,800 when Tony decisively outpointed the veteran in every one of the fifteen rounds of their bout.

The crowd was with Johnny at the start and hailed him vociferously as the fighter he has always been. But when they saw him being beaten to the punch, out-maneuvered, and laughed at by his young opponent, they reverted to type and booed their former idol.

Canzoneri was too young, fast and strong for the weary Dundee. The veteran tried all his old tricks of bouncing off the ropes and attempting to bewilder his adversary by clownish but effective foot-work, but Canzoneri kept stabbing quick lefts and rights to the jaw that showed no fear of Dundee's tactics.

In fact, in the twelfth round, Tony deliberately stood with his hands to his side and smilingly invited Johnny to try and hit his bobbing head. Dundee tried; he swung wildly at Tony's chin. But the blows merely created air-currents. Such an action by another man in the same ring with Dundee some years ago would have been an invitation to quick and sudden loss of interest in all things mundane for at least fifteen rounds.

At the start, Dundee showed a flash of his old genius, but Tony soon had his number and from then on until the fifteenth round it was only Johnny's ring knowledge that kept him on his feet. When the final gong sounded the "Scotch Wop" was fighting way with both hands in a desperate last charge, but it was ineffectual.

There was little question about the verdict, which will be hailed by many as unofficially crowning Canzoneri featherweight champion of the world.

October Replaces November as Best Football Month

Fewer Unbeaten Teams Than in Old Days, Michigan Still On Feet This Season

Major Teams No Longer Hold Best Plays Until End of Year; Champs Made or Broken in October Clashes

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—No longer does King Football wait until the games of late November to determine championship titles, for the battles are waged nowadays on most other Saturday afternoons have as much great importance and are just as big as those later in the season. Indeed are the October games merely warming contests for the major events. For one thing more teams are in the major classification now than before and for another there are few Saturdays in November for things like the number of big games which have long since become fixtures on the schedules.

October Best Month

Taking it a case in point, what game in the entire season looms larger from any angle than the Dartmouth-Yale game at New Haven on Saturday? To be sure, Yale has been defeated this year by Georgia, but the football fans think far less of an occasional defeat now then it used to, and Yale and Dartmouth will take the field before another outpouring of 80,000 to see a battle which will do much to establish one or the other fairly securely in the top flight of the season's teams. And what holds true for the Dartmouth-Yale is good in lesser measure for the Columbia-Cornell game at Ithaca, the Navy-Pennsylvania clash at Philadelphia, the Syracuse-Nebraska game at Lincoln and the Penn State-Lafayette contest at Easton.

Unbeaten Teams Fewer

Some of these games, in fact most of them, are between teams that have already tasted defeat, but they have an opportunity to redeem their earlier reverses by coming through with a smashing victory in one of the admittedly major contests. Fortunately for football, defeat does not have the sting that it once had the really good eleven. Even in mid-season now there are not as many unbeaten elevens as there used to be at the end of the year in the so-called good old days while of unscored on elevens there are virtually none. Just now the breed is almost extinct, with Michigan standing forth as the sole survivor of a one time select and justly celebrated band. And with Michigan facing Illinois on Saturday the possibly looms that another week may see an end of 1927's "unscored on" elevens.

Overthrows Tradition

Football is merely overthrowing another old time tradition in eliminating the undefeated, unscored on fetish, and necessarily so when October brings double the number of top-notch games that used to make November the big football month. Every element that one could hope to find in a Yale-Princeton or Yale-Harvard game of two decades ago will be present in the forthcoming Dartmouth-Yale battle.

Dartmouth, having already conquered Harvard decisively, stands on the threshold of greater things if it can overthrow this Yale eleven. Where the Yale eleven of two weeks ago which lost to Georgia had no scoring punch and no real cohesion combined with a failure to grasp the fundamentals, it now has everything that a major eleven should have and in addition has tremendous momentum gained by its victories over Brown and the Army. Later developments have shown that Brown was rather soft going but victory over the Providence eleven fired the Yale players with wonderful spirit and there is no denying that they literally swept the Army off its collective feet in their encounter last week. It is this aroused Yale eleven that Dartmouth will have to beat and great as the Green has proved itself to be there is some skepticism as to whether or not it will be able to overcome the Blue.

Navy Is Fighting

Much the same sort of a fighting spirit imbues the Navy, for following its defeat at the hands of Notre Dame, the Navy eleven has plunged into the fray more determinedly than ever and in a manner that bodes ill for the Pennsylvanian eleven at Franklin Field this week-end. The Middies are keenly on edge as they demonstrated against the very strong Duke University team.

And two such teams will clash when Columbia and Cornell lock horns at Ithaca. Each has been beaten, the former by Colgate and the latter by Princeton and it will take victory in this game to re-establish the winner once more among the elect. This may explain why these October games have taken such a hold on popular fancy. In each one of the major conflicts no plays are held in reserve as in the old days. Every team gives its best and a little more. That's why the games are critical.

Jackie Adams, 16, girl athlete, braved the choppy waters of San Francisco bay to swim the Golden Gate, in the remarkable time of one hour and twelve minutes, a record for women.

BOLES TO BOLSTER WOOSTER DEFENSE

Wooster Coach Not Satisfied with Presbyterians' Showing Against Case

Wooster, Oct. 25—"The tough part of our football schedule, the last half of the season, is ahead of us. With four games left to play, we must show even more than we have to date if this season is to be a success. Three of the games are away from home which makes the task even harder," said Coach L. C. Boles, Wooster mentor to the varsity squad Monday.

Wooster plays Ohio Wesleyan at Delaware Saturday of this week in the season's only invasion of Buckeye ranks. Then Wooster has yet to play Reserve at Cleveland, Oberlin at Wooster and Akron at Akron.

Although Wooster held Case scoreless while piling up 83 points, Boles was far from satisfied with the game. Wooster did not outclass Case to the extent that score indicates. Case made 13 first downs to eleven for Wooster.

Boles indicated as soon as the game was over that most of his attention this week would be spent in strengthening the Wooster defense for the strong Wesleyan attack Wooster will meet next.

BREAKS OWN RECORD

Weismuller Sets New 300 Meter Swim Record at Syracuse

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 25—Johnny Weismuller, Chicago aquatic star, today had registered another record in his long list of champion performerances. He cut his own 300-meter record of 3 minutes 31 seconds by four-fifth seconds here last night. A. A. U. officials approved the mark.

Weismuller waited fully a second after the crack of the starter's gun to prevent argument over "beating the gun" such as prevented his 300-yard record at Buffalo from being recognized.

NEWEST SENSATION OF FIGHT WORLD

Jimmy McLarnin, Los Angeles lightweight, who stunned boxing followers by knocking out Kid Kaplan in Chicago, is being primed for bout with Sammy Mandell for lightweight championship. McLarnin is touted as best lightweight prospect since days of Benny Leonard.

Harding Meets Bucyrus in Third League Game

BY TOM BUCHANAN
Sports Editor, The Star

Coach Dewey Boyher last night started drilling his Red and Black gridders for the game Saturday that will eliminate them from the N. C. O. league championship race or put them one step nearer it.

Bucyrus, the team that won 55 to 0 from Delaware, tied Ashland six all, and lost to Mansfield, will be the victim or the victor at the Fairgrounds Saturday afternoon. With two league games won nicely the Harding high gridders are hoping to send Bucyrus over the road that has been kept worn by Upper Sandusky, Gallon, Findlay, and Ashland.

The Harding goal line that so far this season has been sullied only once will likely be put in greater danger Saturday that any time this season. But Harding's defense led by Captain Kramer at guard has been performing superby and should be able to hold the visitors to not more than two touchdowns. With the possible exception of Findlay, Bucyrus is probably stronger than any team the Red and Black has met this season. Findlay held Harding to one touchdown. In all other games the locals have checked up two and three touchdowns, three against Upper Sandusky, two against Gallon, and three against Ashland.

Whether Stafford, hard plunging Harding fullback, will be able to do anything spectacular against Bucyrus remains to be seen. After running wild against Gallon and Findlay he was held to small gains by the heavy Ashland team. It was McAninch who was able to get through the Ashland secondary defense for and sizable gains. Garrett and Lowe, the other tow Harding backs, it is a well known fact haven't been going so hot lately. They went good against Upper Sandusky but in bigger company they haven't the weight that is needed. Another factor not entirely in their favor is that McAninch, who has been gaining consistently, has been getting the call in the majority of cases where speed is needed.

Several years ago an English golfer played six rounds on the Milltown course in one day. He began at 4:30 a. m. and ended at 8:30 p. m., and did the 108 holes in 557 strokes. His one day's play was equal to two days of hard manual labor.

FIRST AID AS DEMONSTRATED

Firemen and C., D. & M. Employes Witness Exhibitions at Central Station

First aid demonstrations were given to between 20 and 25 members of the fire department and employes of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co., at Central Station at 10 o'clock this morning by Dr. W. J. Fenton, who is in charge of the Red Cross car which is in this city yesterday, today and Wednesday under the aspices of the Erie railroad.

At 12:45 o'clock Dr. Fenton accompanied by Herbert Young, assistant gave demonstrations to two groups at the Harding High School and at 3 o'clock Mr. Young gave the second demonstration at Central Station for firemen of another crew and also for another crew of C., D. & M. employes.

Selecting one of the employes of the electric company as a "victim" Dr. Fenton gave a demonstration of the very latest methods in first aid work. Drownings, automobile accidents and electrocutions were given by the physician as the three causes of the largest number of accidental deaths.

Explodes Theory

A theory which has been the common belief that the lungs of a person who has drowned, are filled with water, was exploded by Dr. Fenton. The most water ever found on the lungs of a drowned person is not more than two teaspoons full, he said. A small muscle in the throat, which he termed a "trap-door" close when a person was in danger of drowning and practically no water gets into the lungs, the throat and mouth and stomach, however, are filled.

Rolling over a barrel to bring about resucitation or holding the victim's tongue out of his mouth in order to restore breathing, was also declared ineffective by the physician. To lay the patient on his stomach, mouth resting on his hand with the fingers open in order to permit water coming from the stomach to escape and force breathing by pressing forward on the floating ribs, was declared to be the most effective means known. A person who had been in the water for 53 minutes was resuscitated after this means of forced breathing had been used for four hours, Dr. Fenton said.

Shows Method

The same method was shown by Dr. Fenton in his demonstration of reviving a person suffering from electric shock. He also gave demonstrations of methods of carrying a person from a burning building and of first aaid for a person with a broken leg and also of the proper method of lifting a patient on to a stretcher.

Dr. Fenton, whose home is in Des Moines, had been teaching first aid work for the last seven years and for the last and a half has been with the Red Cross as an instructor in this work.

Dr. Fenton and his assistant, Mr. Young, will complete their work here Wednesday morning when they will give a demonstration at the Central junior high school at 8:30 o'clock. They will give a demonstration before the Business Women's Club tonight.

KONJOLA BROUGHT NEW HEALTH ALL OVER HIS SYSTEM

Another Marion Man Relieved of Stomach and Kidney Troubles by New Compound.

"I have tried almost everything for stomach and kidney troubles, but nothing seemed to reach my case until I finally tried Konjola, and now I wish to indorse this medicine to others," said Mr. Harvey E. Sweger, a well-known

MR. HARVEY E. SWEGER

Marion citizen, living at Ruth Ave., this city, during a recent conversation with the Konjola Man who is at the Stump Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, Marion, where he is personally explaining this celebrated new Konjola compound to large crowds daily.

"I was troubled for years with indigestion and stomach misery," said Mr. Sweger. "Everything I ate made me suffer with gas. My food would sour and ferment, and my chest would burn like fire. Due to weak kidneys, I had to get out of bed so often at night that it seemed like I was up every half hour. I had pains in my back nearly all the time, and in the morning I was so stiff and achy all over that it hurt me to move my body one way or the other. I was so miserable with all these health troubles, and was never able to find anything to help. I didn't know what to do for myself.

"Then I heard about Konjola and decided to try this medicine. It helped me from the very first bottle, and each day I was feeling better than I did the day before. Now I am on my fourth bottle, and I have no indigestion or bloating spells like I suffered before. My food always agrees with me and my kidneys are in good condition. I never have to get up once at night. I got wonderful relief from the pains in my back, and always feel fine in the mornings. The awful stiff, achy feeling is gone.

"I am certainly grateful to Konjola and the world of good this medicine has done me, so I indorse it to others."

The Konjola Man is at the Stump and Sains Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Konjola is now being sold by all the other good druggists in every nearby town of this whole section.—Adv.

IF KIDNEYS BOTHER TRY DOSE OF SALTS

Drink Quart of Water if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.—Adv.

If Stomach is Sour

Hereafter instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentation in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drug-store. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

All Sections of Stock Market Participates in Rally

PRICES GAIN 3 TO 7 POINTS

Buyers Hold Theory That List Has Been Oversold

New York, Oct. 25—All sections of the stock market participated in the rally in prices today. Spirited advances, ranging from 3 to 7 points, accompanied the hurried covering of shorts where the recent decline has been most precipitous, but as a rule the market was in the hands of the professionals, whose activity accounted for practically all of the buying and selling of representative shares.

A short-covering scramble for the industrials and specialties in the first period was ample evidence of the fact that the market had been somewhat over-sold in the enthusiastic "bear operations" of the past week or so. It was also believed in the financial district that most of the liquidation and pool selling overhanging the market had been taken care of, and that the technical position of the industrials at least had been considerably strengthened by the events of the past week. After the first flurry, therefore, the market forged ahead confidently.

Houston Up 7 Points

Improvement in the oil stocks in all markets was accepted as a reflection of the continuous decline in crude oil production which appears to have been ushered in. The standard oils were the lead of a new advance in the petroleum shares today, and numerous independents moved upward in response to generous buying. Houston Oil jumped 7 points to 151, at the expense of the shorts. Stocks of American copper companies with Mexican property holdings continued to move forward in the prospect of more harmonious relations with the Mexican government.

United States Steel common was strong while awaiting the publication, after the close of the market, of its third quarterly earnings statement. A considerable falling off in net earnings of the big corporation was looked for, but not enough to jeopardize the 7 per cent dividend on the common stock, for this year at least.

General Motors' quarterly statement was also announced for later in the day, and expectations were for a report of about $3.50 a share earned for the quarter. The motor stocks as a group were active and firm, with Hudson, Studebaker and Nash up about a point on the average, and General Motors up 3.

Control of Rubber Market and World-wide Wool Trade England's Only Hope, Claim

Serious Situation Facing Industrial Great Britain Described by Bishop Warren Lincoln Rogers in Address Before Rotary Club

With the control of the rubber market and a worldwide trade in wool as their only hopes, industrial England is facing one of the most serious situations in its history, so declared Bishop Warren Lincoln Rogers, of Detroit, bishop coadjutor of Ohio in the Episcopal Church in an address before the members of the Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon at the Hotel Harding yesterday.

Bishop Rogers, who has been a close student of European conditions for a number of years, making annual trips abroad ,said yesterday that England was virtually "on the rocks." The statement, the speaker explained, was not altogether his, but was, in substance, the statement of three of England's most prominent men, a journalist, a lecturer and a manufacturer.

Excessive taxation which prevent the accumulation of capital with which to bring about industrial expansion, and the dole system which is breaking down the morale of the working class were pointed out by Bishop Rogers, as two outstanding factors in bringing about the industrial conditions as they exist in England today.

The loss of a tremendous coal export business, which for years served as an exchange for food products with this country, the loss of a large trade in manufactured cotton garments, which for many years was carried on between this country and England and which was lost to that country with the building of mills in the south and the loss of a large trade in small machinery, also have contributed their part in bringing about the serious industrial condition in England, Bishop Rogers said.

Cites Union

Trade unions have also played an important part in bringing about the condition, the speaker said. Unlike the United States, the trade unions of England are so completely organized that a strike in any one field, completely paralyzes the entire country. The recent coal strike was pointed out by the bishop as a startling example of the power unions have in that country.

The dole system, designed primarily as a charity movement, has become a national menace, Bishop Rogers said, for the reason that it is slowly breaking down the morale of the working classes. Under the dole system, it was explained by the speaker, a married man who is out of employment receives two pounds each week while a single man receives 15 shillings. Should any man receiving dole, work even for one day in any week, he does not receive his dole for that week. This feature encourages idleness, the speaker contended.

Heavy Taxes

So great is the taxation in England, it was pointed out by Bishop Rogers, that out of every pound, which is composed of 20 shillings, seven shillings go to pay taxes.

England with its high cost of production brought about by organized labor, faces the very keenest competition from Germany, France and Sweden, the latter leading the world in hydro-electric power development.

Truax Warns Bankers They Will Become "Land Poor"

WILL THEN BE POOR AS FARMS

Ohio Director Publishes Address Prepared for Convention

Houston, Tex., Oct. 25— Warning that the conditions prevailing in the agricultural industry will eventually result in financial institutions becoming "land poor" through enforced ownership of the farm lands upon which they hold mortgages, was contained in the prepared address of Charles V. Truax, of Ohio, which he failed to deliver before the convention the American Bankers' Association. Truax left for Ohio last night declaring the bankers to be "unfriendly to agriculture interests."

"I am speaking to the bankers of America," the text read. "I am going to speak as a plain, blunt man. If the present plight of American agriculture is permitted to continue, it will not be long before the financial institutions, who have loaned twelve and a half billions of dollars on mortgages to the farmers, will own the lands or a large part of them. And when they own these lands, many of the financial institutions themselves will be as nearly bankrupt as the farmers are.

History of Banks

"This is the history of scores of banks in the western states, and it is the cloud which is moving steadily eastward at an alarming rate. In Ohio we know of banks that are in positive distress, because of the ownership of land. Our banking officials and our governmental officials, who have supervision over banks, know this to be true. It can, will, and shall be remedied. Until recently, the people of this country have not appreciated the need of farm relief. We farmers are poor press-agents, and it was years before we succeeded in telling our story to the country.

"It is a story which does not concern the farmers, as such, alone, and that it a newer phase of the question which we must present. It concerns the banks, not alone as holders of loans on farms, not alone as the involuntary owners of farms or lands. It concerns nearly every business or manufacturing institution that deals with farmers, either directly or indirectly, which has felt the plight of the economic depression in America. The banks, which in turn have dealt with these establishments, have felt it, and I make the prediction, will feel it increasingly month by month, and year by year, unless American agriculture is given a fair opportunity with the manufacturer, with labor, with transportation, with public utilities, and with every group of people who are touched by government.

"This is the message that we have to tell. We tell it plainly, frankly and as appealingly as we are able. We tell it to you, because it is your message as well as ours."

C. OF C. BOARD AMENDS RULES

Directors May Now Serve Terms of Indefinite Duration

Members of the board of directors of the Marion Chamber of Commerce may serve terms of indefinite duration in the future as the result of an amendment to the by-laws of the organization which was adopted at a special meeting held last night.

In the past directors could not serve more than three years in succession under the provisions of the by-laws. This limitation was removed as the result of last night's action, which was registered by a unanimous vote of a large representation of the chamber's members attending the special meeting.

The amendment was submitted to the members following unanimous approval of the board of directors at its monthly meeting held Oct. 10. It was generally agreed that a director whose services have been satisfactory should be retained on the board as long as he is willing to serve.

Plan Election

Arrangements have been completed for annual election of the chamber, to be held next month. Nomination of candidates for the board of directors are to be made the first week of November when a complete enrollment of the organization will be mailed to all members. Each member will designate a choice of 14 nominees for directors. The following week ballots listing the 14 receiving the highest number of votes will be mailed out and from this list seven directors will be elected.

The new board of directors will meet the following Monday to elect officers for the ensuing year. These officers will include an executive secretary to have charge of management of the chamber during the year.

The new president will serve without pay. George B. Knapp, who has been president and executive head during the last two years, will retire from that office on Nov. 1 and devote his time to the real estate business. His offices will be on the second floor of the Marion County Bank building.

SELF-INFLICTED GUN WOUNDS ARE FATAL

Louis Gleason, 65, County Home Fireman, Succumbs in City Hospital

A wound below the heart sustained when he attempted to end his life with a 32-caliber rifle a week ago Monday, caused the death of Louis Gleason, 65, fireman at the Marion County Home, at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at City Hospital. Despondency over ill health, acquaintances believe, brought about the suicide.

Gleason was found by Matthew D. Porter, superintendent of the home, in a nearby orchard shortly after the shooting occurred, early in the morning. Mr. Porter said his suspicions were aroused when the man had gone into the orchard, with apparently no motive, and failed to return. He did not hear the shot.

Mr. Gleason has been employed in the capacity of fireman at the home for about 15 years. He was born in Morrow County in 1862. His parents are dead. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Josephine Gleason, and a son Louis Gleason, Jr., at home on Fountain-st, and a sister, Mrs. Olive Miller, of Cheerville.

Funeral services will be held from the W. C. Boyd Funeral Home at 9 a. m. Wednesday with Rev. E. L. Holliday, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church in charge. Interment will be in Marion Cemetery.

Funeral services for Bristol Burks, 56, colored, whose death occurred about 11 o'clock Sunday night at his home, Bryant-st, will be held at the Pearl Wings home, Patterson-st, at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and at 2 o'clock at the Bethel M. E. Church, N. State-st. Burial will be in Marion Cemetery. The body was removed from the C. E. Curtis & Co. Funeral Parlors to the Wings home today.

Mr. Burks was born March 9, 1871 in Amos County, Va. His wife, Cora Burks, died three weeks ago. Death was due to uremic poisoning.
